BTW, I found the FCC regs the 1940 ARRL handbook. The only significant difference between Class A and Classes B & C was that Class A had the additional privilege of using A3 on 3.9-4.0 and 14.150-14.250 MHz.
That's about it. Classes B & C were identical in priveliges; the only distinction was that Class C had looser requirements for testing purposes to accomodate military or CCC personel, people with disabilities or living in remote geographic locations, etc.

Oh yeah..... if anyone wants a scan of an ad for the Hallicrafter's
"Skyrider Diversity" let me know. Awesome looking radio!

No, it's not. The word you're looking for is "arbitrary" and Hans presented anything but arbitrary reasons for such a license.

I like my proposal as it allows for the maximum number of classes.

You sit down in front of an examiner and you're given one question at a time. You get 10Hz for each correct answer. The exam ends when you miss your first question. No retakes ever. Before you leave the exam, you write down your frequencies divided up any way you want. The examiner sends that to the FCC and that is your authorization. They send you a sequential call. No upgrades. No call sign changes. The end.

Claiming motivation or a lack of is a lie? How so? Back up your claim with facts.

Motivation versus a lack of motivation is exactly why we have a population of citizens with various educational, vocational, and wealth differences.

Motivation is the key to everything. Study and you'll become what you wish; if you do not study you'll never become anything.

that is of course easier when taking an extreme example which will follow

telling and a person and emstraing the power tocarry out the threat if if doesn't learn to flap his arms and fly the will be killed and the wholepopulation of the killed first in front of him is plenty of motiviation to learn to fly it is still impoosible more on point you calim that the only reason I for example don't have an extra class licnse today ist that I am not motivated enough to learn code

I tired for years and great effort to learn but failed utterly the reason for my lack an extra class license is not motivation but a lack of abilty

no it isn't or at least not entirely

I am not lawyer making millions at least in parts becuase I find mthe conduct that would be required to sickening, and if some one car to say my spelling is the problem then the blame falls on the factI got a diffeent set of wetware than the rest of you

you have repated the standrad lie we have seen in all politics at one time or another that all with less than another deserve their fate

becuase they were lazy

that John Kerry is not president of the USA is not a matter thathe wasn't motivated enough. or do you claim thats it is

I thought he was going to win at one point. I beleive he lost in part for making a tactical error in dealing the swift boat ads

your blanket stement that motivation equals succes is a lie

plain and simple

The problem is that what motivates you isn't necessarily the same thing that motivates everyone else, and maybe not even a majority.

Yep, that's one issue.

Another is how to craft proposals that have a chance of being enacted. Knowing what the FCC wants is part of how to do that.

OTOH we do have to tell them what we want and don't want. Doesn't mean we'll get all of it, but not saying anything is a sure way to get things we don't want.

YES!

Well, maybe...

Consider that the President, who is Commander in Chief, isn't required to have any military experience. Or that the FCC Commissioners aren't required to have engineering experience or degrees....

You'd think these ignorant poebuckers would give it a break on New Year's Eve eh? Not a chance.

They even got the resident 'hail mary' kook on there this evening.

Oh well, adleast their predictable.

Hello, Hans

As you well know, it isn't the size of the ship, it's the motion through the ocean! :))

You got the comms going back to Guam with what, 100 watts? Into a chain link fence? I know some folks would tell you (and me) to go back to the VFW and tell tales. I hope that the young folks can handle the emergency traffic.

Toad, you are losing it. You need professional help and should seek out better educated misfits such as Roger Wiseman.
Roger is a kindred spirit in that the two of you are mentally infirm, cannot

You should drop Roger a line, Todd. He always has room in his enclave for a remember these words of wisdom.

Never..NEVER bend over when Roger is within three paces of your backside.
Why?
Good that you ask.

Roger has an inbred, uncanny ability to glance sideward and see upturned

Heck, Todd. For all we know you might like Roger prodding your innards.

These are the numbers of current, unexpired amateur radio licenses held by individuals on the stated dates, and the percentage of the total number of active licenses that class contains:

As of May 14, 2000:

Novice - 49,329 (7.3%)
Technician - 205,394 (30.4%)
Technician Plus - 128,860 (19.1%)
General - 112,677 (16.7%)
Advanced - 99,782 (14.8%)
Extra - 78,750 (11.7%)

Total Tech/TechPlus - 334,254 (49.5%)

Total General/Advanced/Extra - 291,209 (43.2%)

Total all classes - 674,792

As of December 31, 2005:

Novice - 26,746 (4.0%) [decrease of 22,583]
Technician - 275,144 (41.6%) [increase of 69,750]
Technician Plus - 43,921 (6.6%) [decrease of 84,939]
General - 135,059 (20.4%) [increase of 22,382]
Advanced - 74,220 (11.2%) [decrease of 25,562]
Extra - 107,436 (16.2%) [increase of 28,686]

Total Tech/TechPlus - 319,065 (48.2%) [decrease of 15,189]

Total General/Advanced/Extra - 316,715 (47.8%) [increase of 25,506]

Total all classes - 662,526 (decrease of 12,266)

Note that these totals do not include licenses that have expired but are in the grace period.

They also do not include club, military, RACES or other station-only licenses.

Note also that effective April 15, 2000, new Novice, Technician Plus and Advanced licenses are no longer issued.

Since April 15, 2000, FCC has renewed all existing Technician Plus licenses as Technician. It is therefore informative to consider the totals of the two classes, since the Technician class includes a significant number of Technician Plus licenses renewed as Technician.

It might also be instructive to look at the totals MINUS the Novice class as I believe we are now at a point that pretty much all the Novices who would have updgraded have done so. Of the remaining pool of Novices, we are losing them by attrition now as they are mainly inactive, not upgrading, and not renewing.

Total Minus Novice May 14, 2000 = 625,463
Total Minus Novice Dec 31, 2005 = 635,780 (increase of 10,317 or 1.65%).

Perhaps, once the Novice class has died out or come close to it, the "decline" in the numbers of amateur radio operators will cease (although 1.85% total or 1/3 of 1% per year is barely a decline).

Personally, I believe that we are simply stabilizing our numbers. I.e. the "market" for ham radio is "saturated" and so we will not experience significant growth and, so long as we do a decent job of recruiting, will not experience a significant decline.

I agree with Dee's analysis. Amateur radio is not likly to suddenly become a new "hot" hobby and is, therefore, going to be fairly stable. Remember too that unlike years ago the US population is fairly stable and not growing at anywhere near the rate it was in the 50s.

Ebay is a toothless tiger and ever since that hag took over running it, it has deteriorated. I'm for buying and selling elsewhere. They COULD police things if they wanted but they want to be "all things to all people" and won't take any stand to protect buyers OR sellers...their myopic mission is to keep money rolling in and to hell with what their users put up with. Their "Security" initiatives are a joke. Ebay is imploding and I think we will see them either sold or out of business entirely in a couple years. Yahoo auctions, although small by eBay standards here in the US are larger than eBay already in Japan.

Yahoo had the market in Japan quite a while before ebay ever came to the scene there. I'm registered there and have purchased a couple of items. In the US it seems Yahoo Auctions is doing the slow implosion, along with countless other ebay wannabees who have fired and missed.

People naturally want to sell their stuff where there is the highest volume of viewers regardless of what site it is. I can understand people getting into a tiff over fees and screwups and marching off to the The Number Two Auction Site. But that will neither kill off the big bear nor will it enhance Number Two. In fact, I didn't realize Yahoo(US) was still doing auctions until just recently when someone mentioned it. I haven't checked their offerings in years, literally. It gained a reputation years ago as being a place for sellers who were thrown off of ebay. Thats probably where this 'alisher' guy will show up next and I imagine they neither will refund bidders who get scammed.

Just my 2 cents worth, with no added handling fees.

Why would you say that's a problem?

The .policy NG was originally created to take the code debate off of
.misc, so I imagine you're on here in order to get the coveted HF access w/o having to learn the code. Hence, you share a common goal with many others (HF access). As you say, what motivates one person (maybe 20m CW DX) can surely differ from what motivates another (maybe the leisurely 40m daytime nets). Differences in motivation certainly aren't a problem.

Hmmmm......

"a difficulty level similar to the current Extra class test"....

The current Extra class test includes Elements 1, 2, 3 and 4.
All the written question pools plus a 5 wpm Morse Code test.

interesting. now where did you ever come up with this conclusion?

you have to consider, K1MAN, violated both FCC rules and reg as well as at least 2 federal laws. you don't like it? LUMP IT.

> That's about it.

That's right.

But you have to understand "the rest of the story"...

In 1940, the HF/MF amateur bands in the US were 160, 80/75, 40, 20 and 10 meters.

30, 17, 15, and 12 meters were not allocated to amateurs.

On top of that, the 40 meter band was all-Morse Code. No 'phone allowed at all.

So a Class B or C amateur's 'phone options were 160 meters, 10 meters,
and VHF/UHF (5 meters, 2-1/2 meters, 1-1/4 meters....)

> Classes B & C were identical in priveliges; the only > distinction was that Class C had looser requirements for testing > purposes to accomodate military or CCC personel, people with > disabilities or living in remote geographic locations, etc.

Yep - a Class C was just a Class B given by mail. A volunteer examiner gave the code test and proctored the written test (but FCC marked the written test).

However, again there's "the rest of the story":

Class C was issued conditionally. If the holder of a Class C license moved to within the required distance of an FCC exam point, left the military or CCC, or recovered from the disability, s/he had 90 days to be retested by FCC - or lose the license.

Class A testing was only available from an FCC examiner or certain specially-designated FCC representatives.

Class A also required at least one year experience as a Class B or C

If a Class C ham went for the Class A license, s/he first had to retake and pass the Class B exam (code and written) at an FCC exam session before being allowed to try the Class A.

The "ABC" system was in place from 1933 to 1951, including WW2.
(Although FCC suspended all amateur station licenses during WW2, they still conducted operator license test sessions, and you could get an amateur radio license all through the war. There just weren't any legal amateur radio stations for you to operate).

--

A piece of amateur radio history that few recall nowadays is how the ABC
system came to be replaced by the Novice/Technician/General/Conditional/Advanced/Extra system in 1951. That 1951 multiclass system is the basis of the current license system.

as I said you don't respect the rule of LAW

K1MAN is accused of vilating FCC rules and federal law

he is inocent of those charges until unless he pleaeds guilty, is tried and sentenced agrees to aplea bargan

those are the facts that you and others would make indicment the same as conviction is not the law of the land

K1MAN also has the RIGHT to a speedy trail and the due process of law,
no matter he may have done

none of these thing seem to be imprtant to the likes of you

the begining of this thread is question why K1MAN is not geting the treatment is entitled to BY LAW

I hae my suspisousion as to why but you don't except to advocate the preemption of the rule of law

Forgers get tripped by own lies a lot and this a big lie when you look under it. Googles can't filter posts for poeple, so he isn't at Gogles if he is flitering them. If he is at Googles he isn't filtering them bacaues he can't. So either way he is liar and is faking his posts just like Mark do.

"Camp X" was a Canadian spy school near Ottawa.

"Hydra" station was intended to keep communications with England during WW2. It ceased operation in the 1960s.

It sounds terribly GLAMOROUS, donut? :-)

More can be found under the Canadian Communications and Electronics

Most everywhere else during WW2 the troops would be reading about pretty girls and movie stars and pretty girls and sports stories and about pretty girls.

But, those at the not-very-famous "Camp X" near Ottawa were of the clandestine amateur persuasion 62 years ago...

Besides, the big station at WAR (in MD outside of DC) was doing its high-power HF multi-circuit thing with the UK and other places back then. For heavy traffic they used RTTY even back then.

Nah. Amateurs did it all and did it better...in the imaginations of other amateurs...

Major Dud will probably claim some sort of "assistant" NCOIC status with the RCAF marine detachment at Camp X. :-)

Geez, this is getting better than the old "reserve colonel" telling about his son over in the Persian Gulf during the 1990-1991 first Gulf War "behind the lines sending intel to Hq via CW!" :-)

Nope. No QRO and no HRO or DRO or PLO.

I've used commercial wideband high-power VHF amplifiers for testing in professional work. Smaller than shown in the

>But the 3cx10,000a7? Hardly amateurish. Probably more in the domain

Sounds rather ILLEGAL to me if "used on 80m" as claimed by the seller.

Not something that HRO or even Henry Radio would feature in catalogs ("call or write for details and prices"). Pro stuff, probably intended for something rather different than pure communications.

From the looks of the exhaust vent in the E-bay photo, I'd say that it should be about a 10-gallon RF output thing, quite out of the amateur legal limits. Besides, it doesn't have enough knobbies on it to "qualify" for an amateur radio transmitter on "the bands" (HF).

Whatever. Except for the following, Jimmie's "idea" is all just warmed-over deja vu.

Right now U.S. amateurs have licenses of 10 year periods, are renewable/modifiable, and there are NO age requirements. Item
(6) on Jimmie's list is just a repeat of what already exists.

As far as I'm concerned, the "NEED" to do morse code at any rate was an arbitrary, unneccessary regulation back in the 60s. Ancient morsemen didn't think so and pressured the government to keep that "vital" necessity (or whatever they called it before Homeland Security needed morse for "the war on terror). So the morse code test stayed in.

True enough, but it HURTS the spay-shull "high class" hams who NEED that super-extra-special federal certificate to show how good they are (above others of "lesser" rank).

Oh, my, we all have to "back up claims with facts" in order to express OPINIONS?

>Motivation versus a lack of motivation is exactly why we have a >population of citizens with various educational, vocational, and >wealth differences.

Hay, coach, how's about "backing that up with FACTS?"

It would have been correct if you struck out "motivation"
and replaced it with abilities or aptitudes.

>Motivation is the key to everything. Study and you'll become what >you wish; if you do not study you'll never become anything.

The art student with NO art aptitude can study until they are blue in the face about art, but they will NEVER be a great artist. They might know a lot about art history and what others have said is the correct technique with media.

The wannabe sports hero can study their buns off on their favorite sport, but if they don't have the ability or aptitude for that sport, they will only amass a mass of facts and statistics.

If one doesn't have the aptitude for "hearing" morse code
as a "language," all the study in the world will NOT make them good morsemen.

The word "motivation" has been terribly MIS-USED for years
yet remains a favorite of managers and instructors...and the fleecers who run "motivation classes" and "motivation seminars" for money. The fleecer's "motivation" is greed. The manager who demands all workers be "motivated" doesn't know how to lead or relate to his people. The instructor who stressed "motivation" above all doesn't recognize that students are: (1). Required to take certain classes for credit and otherwise don't give a damn about the subject; (2). Might be interested - anyway - in the subject and do NOT need "motivation" exhonerations/nagging.

Too many use "motivation" as a buzz-word substitute for themselves being "better than others" because they met the requirements of something and thus like to talk-down to those who complain about requirements.

We can all ask YOU why YOU are so "motivated" to hold fast to old requirements in the amateur radio HOBBY and not permit modernization of regulations?

Amateur radio is NOT a job, NOT a craft, guild, or union. It is a HOBBY. Hobbies are for personal enjoyment, not a "contest" needing half-time "motivational" speeches by self-styled "coaches" urging their players to "win."

Some of those "rules" that he had broken are in question mainly in regards to Pecuniary Interest and Broadcasting. He violated the rules regarding pecuniary interest for transmitting the address of his website, yet at the same time W1AW does the the same thing. Anyone who tells a person, you can look me up on QRZ may also be in violation of the rules as well, it really how far the FCC really wants to push it. As for broadcasting, if his program wasn't directed to the general public and was directed to the amateur radio service, regardless if it opinionated or not may be very much LEGAL. The FCC rules state that for a program to be a broadcast, that it has to be DIRECTED to the GENERAL PUBLIC. What two Federal Laws did he break, besides violation of the FCC rules??

after the origial reason to know morse was stated as the need for the govt to be able to warn Ham off their trnasmsittion but even that "need" was bogus after if the Voice ham could hear the Morse signal and could not understand it then he could just qsy somewhere else if he did not hear the morse signal it not matter if he could understand it or not

We could have done away with Morse Code tsts as early as the first AM voice set, might have been a bit choatic at first, but it have been done logicaly have done away when ever there was first voice

Mark does make a vaild arguement, many amateur's don't understand the process and come to believe that since K1MAN got an NAL that's he done. This however is not true, there is a looooonnnng legal process and could take anywhere from 3 to 5 years to get it all done, depending on how far both parties want to take it. First there's the Administrative process inside then FCC (that's whats going on right now) then after that there's a juridical process which includes the US Court of Appeal and the US Supreme Court. Many amateurs believe that since K1MAN got a NAL he can be on the air this also isn't true, as long as no FINAL ORDER is issued he can continue to use his license. So it will be a long time before the FCC end's K1MAN. One of the problems is many are starting to question the FCC NAL in regards to Pecuniary Interest and Broadcasting so the FCC is probably being cautions because as for as transmitting a commercial website over the radio, many hams have done it and they all could be in violation, and in regards to his information bulletin there is a question of free speech and if the programs were directed to the general public or not.

But you seldom get much right. To be considered an antique, something

A linear amplifier isn't a transmitter, Len. It amplifies the output of Any motivation I have to get an Amateur license is based on my hobbies of radio, radio communication and electronics, not on any desire to play "king-of-the-hill" with a bunch of overweight has-beens who have nothing better to do than to nurture a feeling of self-importance they have because they teeter on the top step of a very short ladder. That, IMO, is a problem, because I'm an overweight has-been with -better- things to do.

And BTW, I have no interest at all in HF; 160m and 6m sound interesting, as does sat-com and UHF point-to-point networking. I do plenty of CW (and CCW) on 1750m and below 9kHz, and play with Part 15 on the AM BC band (covert comm is very cool!). I was also a BC engineer for many years, and have designed, built and operated bigger HF transmitters and antenna fields than most hams will ever have a chance to touch. I even have an old AN/FRT-39B that's been sitting in a van in the parking lot of my shop for about a decade that I've been meaning to restore but just don't have the interest. So if I want an Extra ticket with full HF privileges..... hey, not a problem, and you can bet I'll be heard. The -ONLY- reason I don't is because, like I said before, I have no "motivation" to be classed with a bunch of holier-than-thou hammies who think their shit don't stink. And here's a news-flash, Jeff: Your shit stinks just like everyone else's.

Now..... care to make any more assumptions?

Jeff, this new year (2006) is NOT 1896...when radio was first demonstrated as a communications meadium.

This isn't 1906 either, a time when practically ALL radios, amateur or commercial, had to be "built from scratch."

Today, if you have the "scratch," you can CHOOSE to either build a radio from components (dozens of major parts vendors) or buy them ready-made, ready-to-use. If you look at "shack photos" in the ham publications from the last half century of issues, you will see MOST of them contain ready-built radio equipment.

In my career experience I've learned to not only DESIGN radio equipment of many types but have learned all the steps to fabricate them, test them in the lab, test them in the field. But, that's "hands-on engineering responsibility" and is NOT a requirement for an amateur radio license nor is it a requirement to use radios.
I can - and have - done just that..."building from scratch" but only because I WANTED to do so for myself.
Most of my radio-electronics equipment is ready-built, not because I "can't do it" (I can) but because it is much, much easier for me to do so.

Amateur radio is a HOBBY, not a union, craft, or guild.
Nowhere is there a die-hard "necessity" to retain ALL the "traditions" such as "building from scratch" as it had to be done a hundred years ago.

Now, if you want to "build from scratch" totally, you will have to learn to SUCK all the air out of the tubes
you build for yourself (honoring the "tradition").
That's rather difficult (truly, vacuum sucks)...but much, much easier than first creating ultra-pure silicon and then doping the microscopic areas on it to become the solid-state device you need. [sorry you can't build "spark" transmitters...those being forbidden in these modern times unlike a hundred years ago]

Heh heh, I was born not too far from Galena, IL, where the vital "crystals" for the first crystal receiving sets were obtained. My first "radio" was a Philmore crystal set KIT with the galena crystal already mined and mounted in a piece of lead (circa 1946). :-)

>Whatever.

Try to remain one of the "higher class" of amateurs, Jeff, don't admonish everyone who doesn't share your opinions.

It's fine and dandy you are a rapid-fire morseman, thanks to the USCG. However, the USCG isn't amateur radio. Neither is the University of Hawaii where you "lecture" students at a community college. Morsemanship necessity for federal permission to operate amateur equipment below 30 MHz is on the way OUT. Try to accept that.

Don't try to teach your grandmother to suck eggs, either.

>No 73 for you,

...and none for you either. <shrug>

Good luck on your efforts to ENFORCE TRADITION and bringing back the home-built spark transmitter a la 1906...

Sincerely,

LenAnderson@ieee.org

I disagree but only slightly. Don't forget that the ARRL officers ARE the olde-tymers of morse code. Naturally they would pressure for more privileges in what they liked or could do best.

There is no quantitative "factual" accounting of that opinion other than the obvious private-party exchanges (mostly off-line). The league can't admit that it does what it did and merely "sin by omission" of NOT saying anything bad about itself. [they will not since they are the self-styled "representative" of amateur radio and cannot keep memberships by being self-negative]

>> As far as I'm concerned, the "NEED" to do morse code at any

Not possible for the administration committed to honoring the USA membership in the ITU and its radio regulations.

The first widely-heard AM radio transmission was in 1906, hardly a time for AM to become universal. Forget about FM and PM then until the vacuum tube was perfected; the first triode was created in 1906. AM broadcasting did not become practical until the 1920s.

The change in amateur radio regulations COULD have been broached at WARC-79 but - as far as amateur radio was concerned - the year 1979 at WARC was the matter of the "40m issue" between amateurs and SW BC people. That didn't get any firm resolution for 24 more years (WRC-03).

However, BY 2003, the IARU had swung around to eliminate the compulsory radio regulation (S25.5) requiring manual morse code testing for any license having below-30-MHz privileges. That was a change that was LONG overdue.

Those that control the influences in amateur radio are generally the olde-tymers who were grounded in the older traditions...such as the "need" to demonstrate morse skill vital to a much earlier era. The league is a good example of extreme conservatism insofar as amateur radio licensing is concerned. The IARU has swung around from such extreme conservatism despite being composed of the (generally) same lot of olde-tymers. They CAN see the future more clearly than the American league (of self-distinguished gentlemen).

At one time in the PAST there was a need to demonstrate manual radiotelegraphy skills. The problem with so many is that they keep on venerating the past with a passion, a nostalgia for times before they existed. Tradition is a fine thing but it loses value when it is codified into law as a requirement for all.

I am reamain unconvined of this "need" after all if the rules said you

Morse code testing was in Judgement a very helpful tool of regulation

Who the fork are YOU, Heil? Webster?

Obviously you've never been to all those many east coast "antique

I'd rather go to the SOURCE for history information...such as the Communications and Electronics Branch of the Canadian military.

By the way, "non-antique," the CANADIAN HISTORICAL information ALSO contains a bibliography of books on that subject. Those were compiled earlier than the QST "article."

Hello, can we say "re-write" and "cribbing" by the QST article author?

"Profile" all you want, Dubya Junior.

Horse maneuvers, Dubya Junior. Go talk to James Bamford. He wrote a few books about the CIA and the NSA. Go talk to the curators of Bletchley Park museum in the UK. Go talk to David Kahn, whose best-seller (on NYT non-fiction category in the 1960s) was "Codebreakers, a History of Cryptography." Better yet, go talk to someone else who can be persuaded you are a super-extra-special "superior" person.

MOST clandestine things, ops, etc. are VERY famous.

Oh? Yes, this was all about "glamour" in a little known Canadian Signals installation...as done by AMATEURS.

Problem you league-polishers have is NOT understanding all you think you know about the REST of radio. That includes those who were ONCE in "the foreign service."

COMMERCIAL communications services of the USA and Canada were active BEFORE the UK got involved in WW2. Washington Army Radio (WAR) took the nod from them and went TTY for the majority of messaging before 7 Dec 41.

Tsk, tsk, tsk, I KNOW the style of things done in QST...and how to write for them. That's why I do NOT try to write for them.

Not in/around Ottawa, only Montreal and Vancouver. :-)

I DID Signals work in another part of the globe. BIG TIME work, three-dozen-plus high-power HF transmitters on 24/7.
Do you need a link to see where and what of that? :-)

"Profile" all you want, Dubya Junior.

You come in out of the black with some cribbed "article" in QST about some Canadian Signals effort during WW2 when the history, written by Canadians themselves, was openly published between 1995 and 2003 and think it is NEWS?

Good grief, Secret Agent Ham, you ARE dense!

Now be a good little extra and go fondle your code key. That will take you back to the halcyon days of yore when Kode was King and hams were the epitome of all radio operators...long before you existed, Secret Agent Ham.

Most bestest of good fortune on that one now...

No, Michael. I assumed that if I used the word "radio" in the search engine I'd see a radio somewhere in the first four pages instead of used cars.

Dave IS on the list of A-1 Operators that the gov't used to use to know who the very best amateur operators were. But they've not needed to look at that list in many, many years.

NOMINATIONS FOR AARA/LEO I. MEYERSON, W0GFQ, AWARD FOR EXCELLENCE IN AMATEUR RADIO OPEN

Nominations are now being accepted for the AARA, 2006, Leo I. Meyerson, W0GFQ, Award for Excellence in Amateur Radio. Send your nominations and supporting materials to the Awards Committee, AARA, the American Amateur Radio Association, Box 440, Belgrade Lakes, Maine 04918, USA.

Leo Meyerson is a true radio pioneer. His World Radio Laboratories developed one of the first single side band rigs, and their Galaxy radios were the first to use transistors hybrid with tubes. Leo flew around the world on a SAC aircraft with Arthur Collins with his 500 Watt Globe King AM transmitter to test AM compared with Art's KWS-1 1000 Watt SSB transmitter. SSB proved itself, and the race was on. Leo developed new methods for manufacturing crystals during World War II which were adopted by all the crystal manufacturers and earning him the Army "E" Award. Leo gave away part of his company which then became Hy-Gain Electronics.

Leo is in the QCWA Hall of Fame and a Dayton Ham of the Year. Leo Installed Maine's QCWA Pine Tree Chapter, which he and Glenn Baxter, P.E., K1MAN, started together years ago. AARA and IARN are proud to offer this grand Award which honors Leo and his commitment to excellence in amateur radio.

Maybe it should go to Jim/N2EY for recognizing on Dec 10 that the FCC does not license amateur radio.

>but we could have done without it if had wanted to

Not TECHNICALLY. The first "radio transmitters" used by hams were the Spark jobbies. Easy enough to construct at the time of the first U.S. radio regulating agency created in 1912.
A Spark transmitter - of the ham variety - could ONLY be turned on or off. Since that was the way the landline telegraph worked, morse code was adapted for radio.

There weren't many other ways to communicate with those technically primitive "radios." ANY on-off code scheme would have worked. "Morse" happened to be a then-mature way to go so that was it.

I doubt that any ham in 1906 tried putting a "high-power" carbon microphone in series with their antenna lead a la Reggie Fessenden...even after Fessenden proved it could be done. [no other AM broadcaster tried it for broadcasting service...har!]

The vacuum tube was needed for "clean" CW generation. Once those were more perfected, damped wave oscillation ("spark") was declared forbidden for use. Rightly so since it took up many, many Kilocycles of bandwidth that only a galena crystal receiver could love. :-)

MAYBE the code test could have been dropped from amateur radio licensing in 1934 when the FCC was created. Personally, I don't think so from the political situation brewing in radio and all of "electronic" communications through USA membership in the CCITT. [the CCITT morphed into the ITU once the UN was born]

By 1960 the vast majority of message traffic around the world was being done by TTY. [yes, Hans, the USN DID use morse on ships] MAYBE the time was ripe then for a code-test-free license. No, said the olde-tymers of that time, they were (now generally retired) champions of morsemanship and weren't about to let go. They "knew what was best for (their) ham radio!"

By 1970 the code-test-free license was an even greater possibility. Offshore-designed/built radios were showing up on the ham market and the VHF-and-up HT was a practical piece of radio goods. The olde-tyme morsemen were still adamant and getting more stern. NO #$%^!!! code-test-free license for ham radio, no sir! :-)

By 1980 the code-test-free license now had supporters, even a few of the clearer-thinking olde-tyme morsemen (!)...but there were many against this (shocking) revolution. That didn't come to pass until 1990 and FCC 90-53...which resulted in the no-code-test Tech class beginning in 1991.

The 1990s had the steamroller of streamlining going faster and faster...and the result being, of course, recent history in amateur regulations.

I don't know where Jeff got his from, but one of my friends has a picture of a sign that is located at the outer perimeter of what is popularly referred to as Area 51 in Nevada that contains very similar verbage.

Not at all. On the website I showed in a link, their 7-chapter radio.

Not as far as I knew.

The only visitors were U.S. brass and a couple of USAF types from the 16th Communications Squadron at the old Tsukishima site (they shared the island with the Army). At the new site NW of Tokyo at Kashiwa there were dozens and dozens of farmers sharing the antenna field. No occidental visitors

"Camp X" is better known in cryptographic circles for being the debriefing place of USSR crypto clerk Igor Gouzenko after Gouzenko defected (from the USSR Embassy in Ottowa) in 1945.
It wasn't made news to the world until early 1946 (that I recall) but was then a minor sensation as the first in a long line of USSR defectors to the USA and Canada.

Since Davie has jabbered on and on about being "in the foreign service" I thought he would have KNOWN about another Embassy person, especially a defector. Davie never mentioned that.

>Len, you gotta give him credit for at least trying.

Brian, the Secret Agent Ham is wayyy too trying for me.

I give Davie absolutely NO CREDIT for anydamnthing but trying to heckle non-morsemen. He hasn't earned a thing

I believe an administrative law judge made that decision.
In fact, once you placed your signature on the license request form from the FCC, you automatically granted them "rights" and "permissions" to take whatever action is deemed fit given the situation. That form (formerly known as a "610") is a contract (Better look at some contract law).

when he signed that form, submitted it and received his license in return, he agreed to all terms and conditions relevant to the FCC rules and regulations (including, but not limited to: part 97 et al).

I am fairly certain that any lawyer with a background in communications laws and regulations would fill you in on far more details than I can....

Under "normal" circumstances, yes. However, given that his license is under FCC jurisdiction, he agreed (by contract) to abide the rules and regulations or to suffer the consequences therein. The same is true for any of us that have our "license" <by signing, we agreed to uphold the rules and regulations (and any applicable federal laws) and that we also agreed to submit to the process the FCC uses for dealing with "offenders". Don't like it? get it changed then>.

Now, as yet, he has not filed an appeal, nor has he "apparently" filed a response with the fcc regarding the NAL/NOF (at least, there is not yet a public record of his doing so at this time).

read above. he is getting that treatment (as he agreed to when he signed that 610 form).

you still don't get it.
better start reading some law books and then take a long hard look at the regs again.

147. Hams ruin welcome at Rose Parade

Amateur Radio no longer at Rose Parade

Amateur Radio operators no longer part of Tournament of Roses Parade. The world famous parade is held every New Year's Day in Pasadena, CA. For more than 30 years, an amateur radio group provided support communications for the event. But beginning this year, the amateur radio operators will no longer be part of the event. Parade organizers have an ample supply of alternative communications and are comfortable no longer using the amateur radio group. They would have liked to use the hams, but it appears the hams began to tell parade officials how to handle parts of the communications. (Tnx to Steve Stroh, N8GNJ for the link.)

A general observation based on the article and on recent experience in my part of the world - Many hams still view their communications support as an essential service and have not appreciated that communications is now a commodity availlable through many alternatives. I have personally seen situations where amateurs adopted an attitude that clearly lost sight of themselves delivering a service to someone else. As a service provider, the served agency (or in this case, the parade officials) are the customer. You do what the customer requires. Too many ham groups get confused on this point and try to run the show themselves.

In my state, we have a lot of hams volunteering to help the Red Cross in times of emergency. A decade ago, hams were called a lot to provide communications at many disaster situations. Today, locally, they are called, perhaps, once per year or less, because the Red Cross has many communication options available today. Many hams still view communications problems as "ham radio problems". They do not think outside the box. From the Red Cross perspective, I have an emergency problem and I will solve that problem using all possible solutions available to me, with hams being one of those tools (I am a ham radio operator too). My job (as a volunteer) is not to create communication opportunities for hams, but to render disaster relief in the most effective way I can. Some hams believed it was my job to define all communications problems in terms of them. Hams have a lot to offer, but not all groups are stepping up to the modern era and offering the right blend of services that meet served agency needs. And their groups are dying.

Ham radio operators to skip Rose Parade

Ham radio operators to skip Rose Parade

Pasadena Star News

By Gene Maddaus , Staff Writer

PASADENA -- A pair of ham radio operators were lugging equipment onto the grounds of Tournament House in preparation for last year's parade when they were stopped by a "senior Tournament official.'

"This senior Tournament person came absolutely unglued,' reports Allen Hubbard, a board member of the Tournament of Roses Radio Amateurs. "He was accusing them of lying to get on the grounds.'

Although they are not officially part of the Tournament of Roses, the radio amateurs have been providing a communications link along the Rose Parade route for more than 30 years. Radio operators have routinely "shadowed' Tournament White Suiters, behaving like a volunteer signal corps straight out of World War II.

But in the age of cell phones, they have begun to feel unwanted.

This week, the Tournament of Roses Radio Amateurs voted not to participate in the upcoming parade, after suffering what they perceived to be a series of indignities.

"This has been building for at least the last four years,' Hubbard said.

For many of the more than 250 club members, the incident at Tournament House last year was the last straw.

"I think it's come to the end of a run,' said Bill Flinn, the Tournament's chief operating officer. "We're sorry to see them go.'

Most White Suiters have cell phones, and don't need a radio operator shadowing their every move. Nextel is a corporate sponsor of the parade, and has donated a number of phones to the Tournament. That doesn't sit well with the ham radio operators, who point out that cell phones often lose reception in areas where ham radios work.

Amateur radio operators also tend to pride themselves on being hobbyists, and on not being profit-seekers.

"We provide a genuine service to the Tournament,' said Earle Bunker, a club member for 20 years. "The people we work with the White Suiters are very much for us. They tell us that. It's somebody farther up the line.'

Bunker, who has traditionally handled ham radios at the post-parade float viewing, said the radios often come in handy.

"Two years ago a fellow lost his insulin kit,' Bunker said. "Somebody turned in the kit at one of the gates.'

Radio operators made the connection, and the kit was returned.

The radio group has also tracked floats with global positioning devices and installed a dozen video cameras up and down the parade route.

"Every year, there's $70,000 worth of private equipment brought in to help the Rose Parade,' Bunker said. "I think there are some who think they can do it all with Nextel. I don't think they can.'

Over the years, the group has coordinated its activities from a room inside Tournament House that acted as a nerve center. But a recent remodeling transformed the radio room into archive storage. Over the past few years, the group has had to transmit from a mobile trailer.

"We used to get what we felt was better cooperation,' Hubbard said. "People on the board have felt that Nextel has put pressure on the Tournament to get rid of us. They want people using Nextels.'

Representatives of Nextel Communications did not return calls for comment.

The radio group had been negotiating with the Tournament in an effort to keep the relationship alive. The minutes of a July meeting suggest that at the time, relations were strained but the radio club remained optimistic that it could still be useful.

"Time was spent reviewing the TORRA assignments list, clarifying, confirming and deleting positions,' the minutes state. "Most TOR chairs will not need shadows since they have Nextels.'

The minutes also suggest that radio operators were left stranded and bored last year, without a White Suiter and with nothing to do. When Ed Afsharian, chair of communications and credentialing for the Tournament, suggested that one radio position be cut, the radio amateurs responded that the position was so important that an extra operator should be added.

The negotiations finally broke down Sunday, when the radio amateurs' board voted to back out of the Jan. 1, 2005, parade.

The Tournament will get along without the radio operators this time, Flinn said, and consider having them back for the 2006 parade. Hubbard said his wife is looking forward to taking him out for a New Year's Eve party for the first time in 15 years.

"They say new technology will take care of it, but I don't know,' said Bunker's wife, Mary Louise, herself a ham operator and a former mayor of Alhambra. "A lot of gals don't know what good a husband is until he goes on a business trip.

"It's going to be a real interesting New Year's.'

Heh. Yessss . . Reminds me of the time there was a flap in this NG about that Eimac bottle or one of it's close cousins being used to run 56kW in a Chevvy Suburban truck during CB "shootouts". I tossed the 56kW "mobile" station topic into the thread as post #150 and the thread went on to 899 posts before it finally died. The thread was "CW = Engineer ?" circa 1 Sept 98. It's still available.

Back when folk like Carroll, Hare, Tennehill and McCollum populated this NG and the average IQ hereabouts was 30 points higher than it is these days.

Sweetums was there too of course tossing out all sorts of his usual inane blather even back then . . like it wasn't possible to run 56kW in a Suburban because the coax and antenna would get toasted by all those amperes worth of RF.

A few? Of the 33 words in your original masterpiece, there were 16

Let them use nextels.

If anything hits the fan and the Nextel system overloads there will be one less source for backup comms.

Some groups have to learn from their own stupidity (if they ever learn)

I have heard such stories before but not on this scale

In Illioois IEMA and ARES were not (and may still not be speaking) it is easy to looks at some ham personalities and igmaine the conversations

Dan was commenting that Red Cross seemed to be avoiding the use of Ham Radio during Katrina

this sort of thing is likely to become an increasing problem for the

Nothing illegal, so long as it's used within the rules. I have a couple of different amplifiers which could easily be driven beyond 1500W out, but are perfectly legal so long as the power output rule is observed.

Nah. "Camp X" was merely secluded enough and guarded well enough to ensure privacy. Defectors are kept as comfortable as possible, unlike lawbreakers.

Heh heh...I saw that website about when it was begun...that guy has been having fun with all sorts of projects in true
do-it-yourself spirit! :-)

The section on Tesla coils and stuff akin to that is not a "clean" source of fun. Those things and their discharges can do quite a bit of broadband RF pollution.

Not the same at all, Jim.

There is a clear safety advantage to lower power for less experienced users, especially if you don't have a strenuous examination of safety issues.

As you have stated yourself, there is absolutely no fundamental difference between operating at 3524 vs 3526, obviating any rational regulatory reason for carving up the bands to provide private reservations for higher class licensees.

You are correct.

Yep. Jim starts saying things that he wishes he hadn't when faced with one of your restructuring ideas. On the last one, he said that a Morse Code exam would be a barrier to Morse Code use. That statement could have been made by Carl, and it would have been false. It could have been made by Bill Sohl, and it would have been false. It could have been made by Len Anderson and it would have been false. But it was made by Jim, and it has always been true.

just how often is the attitute of some hams getting the way of ham radio being able to fufill public service functions?

and what if anything cn be done about it?

How is it any different? They're both a matter of judgement, not some absolute scientific or engineering fact or limit.

Agreed!

But setting the line at 50 W output is purely a matter of judgement. Is a 50 W transmitter somehow "safe" at the proposed testing level, but not a 100 W transmitter?

Consider that if the 50 W license were created, a considerable number of new Class B hams would probably use 100-150 W rigs and simply not run them at full power.

> As you have stated yourself, there is absolutely no fundamental difference > between operating at 3524 vs 3526,

What is the fundamental difference between operating a 50 W transmitter and a 100 W transmitter? Under your plan, the former would be legal for Class B but not the latter.

If your reason is RF exposure, consider that 50 W to an antenna with gain can be far more hazardous than 100 W to an antenna with no gain. Since your proposed Class B could run 50 W on any authorized amateur frequency,
including UHF, some RF exposure testing would be needed anyway.

> obviating any rational regulatory reason for > carving up the bands to provide private reservations for higher class licensees.

Instead, what you propose is keeping the "lower class" at a low power level,
even though the power limit proposed is not backed by any real safety issue.

Yeah, but I can make a long list of common things that are just as

The world tires of your transparent trolling, Jim, but I'll humor you.

My proposed low limit on power (we can niggle over >how< low is appropriate) is intended to protect the newcomer and his/her neighbors from the potential safety hazards of QRO RF.

Your proposed graduated levels of "private frequency reserves" has no rational regulatory justification. It's pure 19th century-liberal social engineering.

To me it is just the "power" thing. As in the old folk axiom:

"Power corrupts. Absolute power corrupts absolutely."

Power and control are emotional narcotics. It's difficult to go "cold turkey" after having them and the rationales for continuing on the power trip are many and varied. That's what many see the league being guilty of in the past four decades.

>WW I? I think

I think some time close to 1960, coincident with the start of the solid-state era and the digital circuitry yet to appear en masse in the electronic component marketplace.

While the late 40s and all of the 50s saw the rise of TV and the mobile two-way radios (neither of which using "CW"), the compact, power-economic transistor and IC circuitry led to a number of radio improvements: Frequency synthesis to any desired frequency with quartz crystal stability; true adoption of existing SSB techniques in much smaller packages; FM and PM as practical modulation modes in less-bulky radios; the keyboard-graphical user interface for all kinds of data modes; improved modems employing Information Theory for minimum spectral content yet maximizing data throughput.

WW2 radios proved - absolutely - the value of FM for portable and mobile voice two-way radios. Even though those used tube architecture, newer and better design efforts led to rather compact designs. A case in point is the SCR-300 backpack VHF "walkie-talkie" having 18 tubes and weighing only 40 pounds with the big battery. The AN/PRC-8 family follow-on cut the weight and bulk in half just a decade later, even though they also used tubes (subminiature variety). In yet another decade, the AN/PRC-25 appeared with easy channel selection (crystal controlled), all solid-state except for the final amplifier (a tube). The AN/PRC-77 was a totally-solid-state version of the PRC-25, taking less than a decade after the first appearance of its older brother. In the civilian/commercial world, the handheld FM voice transceiver was becoming the radio of choice once the solid-state devices were available to designers.

Teletype Corporation's teleprinters had proved indispensible in written messaging communications just prior to and during WW2. A written copy at each comm circuit end, identical, no specialized operator training needed to run one of those. While cost was a factor in slowness to adopt those for civilian/commercial uses, the first of the "dumb" terminals (with attached printers) would supplant those wonderful old electro-mechanical beasties. Solid-state circuitry made the "dumb" terminal possible...and the control of the peripheral paper printer.

SSB for voice radios became a practical reality in the 60s and took over "the bands" (HF) for relatively narrow AM SSB, aided first by mechanical or crystal bandpass filters, then the Gingell Polyphase network (after the 70s).

You have to realize that there is a terrible INERTIA in some "regulatory" circles (standardization rather than legislative coding of regulations). Newer concepts are difficult for many to accept, those wishing to retain modes and methods that they finally learned to understand.

In 1934, "radio" was only 38 years old. It had gone through the beginning arc-spark era, through the KW VLF alternator era, and suddenly thrust into "modern" radio using vacuum tubes. Receivers were now sensitive, first through the regenerative variety, then the superheterodyne (invented just 16 years prior). Many, many, Many NEW things had appeared in radio in just a generation and a half of human existance. That was difficult for many amateur radio hobbyists to keep up with back then. On-off keying morse code was already a mature mode in 1896, well-known (through telegraphy), and therefore something the standardizers and regulators could understand.

All the way up to 1941, the most conventional way to transmit voice on radio was through AM and "plate modulation" of the final amplifier. That meant an extra audio amplifier having a power output (at AF) at least half that of the RF final amplifier. Bulky, costly, and a power-hog, it was restricted to broadcasters for the most part. Use of FM tossed out that big AF power amplifier for modulation and assured a constant signal level in the useful dynamic range of the receiver. Even though Ed Armstrong had PROVED the efficacy of FM prior to WW2, the INERTIA of the powers-that-be kept it from being commonplace. The needs of WW2 tossed aside a lot of the old inertia about modes and methods in radio.

Some relative "youngsters" question "why couldn't we have had SSB sooner than 1960?" That's more complicated. The Telcos were ALREADY using SSB techniques in frequency-multiplexing many telephone voice channels into one pair of long-distance wires in the 1920s. That was wire-line telephone use and "not radio" (as it was known then). But, the Telco subsidiaries were adapting this new multi-channel "carrier" equipment to go on RF and did so in the 1930s. The Dutch were the first to put HF SSB multi-channel into service, Hilversum to the Netherlands Antilles. Worked just dandy and many other radio communications providers used the same sort of system. That became standardized (through use) as having four voice bandwidth channels, usually with two of the voice bandwidth channels further frequency-multiplexed to carry about 8 TTY circuits. Heckuva good spectral economy in only 12 KHz of bandspace. But, that was TELEPHONE techniques and "not radio as 'everyone' knew it." It didn't really occur to radio folks that SINGLE-CHANNEL SSB might be useful until after WW2 and then to the Army Air Corps (prior to becoming the USAF in 1948) for their long-distance bomber fleet. While "the SSB story" is awash in myths and legends of its 'development,' single-channel SSB AM became the de facto voice mode on HF for MANY different HF radio users, not just amateurs. The WHY of not having single-channel SSB radios for 20 years after the first HF SSB appeared is what I put down to INERTIA in thinking, inability to grasp the obvious.

If you wish to see "inertia" in thinking in the amateur radio area, just read about a decade's worth of ham magazines of the 50s and 60s, especially the "letters to the editor" sections. Hams of that time were FIXED in certain concepts (finals HAD to be Class C, could not be "linear" due to "efficiency"), that one MUST have a humongous AF plate modulator to create AM, and "CW gets through when nothing else will" mythos. Many hams just refused to try understanding "phasing" modulation in creating AM...it HAD to be done by moving the Class C final's plate supply "up and down" just like the classic RF envelope depiction of AM in all the textbooks. :-) [the basic math behind AM, FM, and PM modulation had been worked out by 1915 and still holds true today]

If - and only if - the rest of the radio world had NOT been advancing in technology, radio amateurs MIGHT still claim justification for retaining the manual code test. Turning an RF carrier on-off is a very simple concept, easy for anyone to understand. All the other modes take some head-scratching to grasp how it is done. Inertia in learning is safe, easy, a survival tactic...and it improves self-esteem of the "operators." :-)

I still do ARRL Volunteer Counsel work, although things up here are pretty quiet, and I'm VP - Regulatory Counsel at a major player in the public safety communications engineering field. I do not take on any other clients, and for personal reasons my FCC work is pro-bono so I'm not dependent on the FCC for income.

I opted out of FERS when it first started and remained in the CSRS plan. My SocSec is based in the 15 years that worked in the private sector and paid into SocSec. FERS participants do, however, make mandatory contributions to a annuity plan that is separate from SocSec, and all Federal employees are eligible to contribute to a voluntary 401-K plan that is on a par with "private" plans.

The new crop of folks try - seems like writing understandable English is becoming a lost art - but us old-timers get it fixed a lot quicker and easier than in the Amateur service because in general there's no bickering amongst the broadcast engineers when it comes to FCC regs. I serve as a chapter vice-chair in the Society of Broadcast Engineers and my firm mentioned above has a working partnership with one of the largest broadcast consulting engineering firms in the country.

Anyhow, the FCC is less concerned about things technical in the broadcast field than they are in stuff like mergers and consumer affairs and schedules for transition to DTV/HDTV and HD Radio (yes, there is such a thing). On the latter score, the systems allowed and in use are total trash. That's what happens when engineers are replaced by non-engineers who don't or won't understand technical stuff or what "good regulatory practice" is.

Let that be a lesson to us as we argue about the content of amateur radio operator exams and the structure of amateur licensing.

That's the crux of the whole thing, isn't it?

"Legality." :-)

>I have a couple of >different amplifiers which could easily be driven beyond 1500W out, but are >perfectly legal so long as the power output rule is observed.

...and just who checks your "legal status" in operating?

Oh, my, there's LOTS of different "technical" regulations in Part 97, Title 47 C.F.R., aren't there?

The same can be said of Citizens Band Radio Service. It was "okay" once and legal to have a linear amplifier connected to a CB transmitter provided one did not exceed the regulatory limits found in Part 95, Title 47 C.F.R. Uh huh... :-)

A company called General Radiotelephone once operated in Burbank, CA, on Magnolia Blvd a few blocks from Hollywood Way. They had - once - a cramped, busy assembly line operation going on the second floor of one building on the north side of Magnolia Blvd. Their major product was a CB transceiver which was ready to increase its power output from 5 to 35 Watts (by removing a jumper) "if and when the FCC allows a power output change." It SOLD in quantity with that "feature." The company planned to expand in the near future and had put up most of a triangle tower for their CB antenna...tower still visible half-erected on the roof today. Of course the FCC never did increase CB power output. The offshore import CB rigs arrived to undercut their prices and they went Chapter something and quit the business. [no, I didn't have one of those General Radiotelephone rigs, but they were in my vicinity and I was up on their second floor factory]

Now and for some years there has been a legal no-no on even being able to PURCHASE a linear amplifier in a certain frequency range...which could be used for a CB radio...or a 10m amateur radio. Can you connect the dots and see a trend for the future there?

If someone has a 10 KW linear that covers all of "the bands" (HF) then it is tempting both faith and human nature to say that a legally-licensed (certificated, tested, got their legal license in the nave of the Church of St.Hiram) amateur will ALWAYS OBEY THE RULES. The temptation is GREAT...just sitting there, ready to go, beside the operating position in the "shack."

Of course YOU will always be scrupulously honest. [was there any doubt?] Are all the other legal amateurs just as scrupulously honest?

Be honest now...

But you have bills for the cells and the wind units and the maintain of them and the install of them all of which can be lots more money than paying for electric tricity. It is like them hibrid cars which cost so much that it is cheaper to buy gas for a regular car. consumer report

Why is this posting in this newsgroup AGAIN?

It's been in here before. Same wannabe kinda story.

>The radio group has also tracked floats with global positioning devices and >installed a dozen video cameras up and down the parade route.

Why?!? The "Rose Parade" (Tournament of Roses) is, for over 90 percent of its route a STRAIGHT LINE along Colorado Blvd.
in Pasadena. Good grief, any deviation from the assigned route could be telephoned in from public call boxes all along Colorado! :-) Total route length is no more than 5 miles.

The floats aren't high-speed vehicles. They can be tracked on foot by anyone able to walk. Some of the "white suiters"
(parade officials) use little motor scooters along the route.

At least FOUR major network/cable TV camera setups (multiple,
each one) covered this year's event, rain-soaked though it was. Good grief, even Home and Garden Television cable channel covered the 2006 parade!

Pasadena PD was out in force again...as well as paramedic ambulances of the Pasadena FD. Both have fine two-way radios
that they use around the clock, a system in-use for decades
in Pasadena. In addition to that, the float builders have their own HTs they use in moving to the parade start point
and for the ending assembly area.

>The negotiations finally broke down Sunday, when the radio amateurs' board >voted to back out of the Jan. 1, 2005, parade.

Okay, so, from that sentence, this Pasadena newspaper story
is from 2004, not last year.

My wife and I watched an HDTV recording of both the 2004 and 2005
Tournament of Roses Parade on Sunday, shot by local independent TV station KTLA. There was no sign that anyone of - or near - the "white suiters" were using any HTs.

>The Tournament will get along without the radio operators this time, Flinn >said, and consider having them back for the 2006 parade. Hubbard said his >wife is looking forward to taking him out for a New Year's Eve party for >the first time in 15 years.

My wife and I watched the rain-sodden Tournament of Roses parade
this Monday morning. [it is already 2006...the parade is never held on a Sunday] No sign that anyone of - or near - the "white suiters" were using any HTs.

Of course, with all the raincoats (transparent and opaque) that most were wearing, it might be hard to tell. :-)

It's easy to hide a little Tuna Tin 2 HF CW transmitter... :-)

>"It's going to be a real interesting New Year's.'

Nothing at all "interesting." Just rain and wind. Many floats looked woebegone at the start from the applied decorations struck off by rain. Rain hasn't hit the "Rose Parade" since the 1960s.

The Pasadena Tournament of Roses parade has been going on for 116 years. The 2006 event is the 117th. Radio is only 110 years old and truly portable radios have only been around since after WW2. The parade organizers and planners can, and have, done this successful parade along the straight line of Colorado
Boulevard for many years without amateur radio "help."

It's just another BS posting by a parade wannabe. :-(

I could not agree with you more.
Ham comms are obsolete.

Even the Police, Fire and EMT's here all have NexTel phones with the Talkgroup features, this in addition to their regular trunked radios. Communications are no longer a problem and using hams to get word around is simply no longer necessary. Of course the hams will never admit that they are as obsolete as the code keys in their radio rooms.

Ham radio is now become a hobby and no longer a service. Anyone who thinks otherwise has their head buried in the sand like the proverbial loony-toon cartoon ostrich.

Besides not being able to use the English language properly in your postings, you also demonstrate your ignorance of world politics as well. (Bush's "Iraqi oil-grab war" is an abject failure.

Don't believe me? Then ask yourself if you are paying more for Hydrocarbon/Petroleum Fuel(s) TODAY than you did BEFORE his little war started.

G-d forbid our bastard King George Bush II attacks Iran alongside of/with Israel in 2006! If that happens, you will be paying $7 per gallon as world oil markets go thru the stratosphere in war related petroleum speculations and price shocks.

I guess then, the answer is no (unless you state unequivocably otherwise).
this "indefinite response" of yours plus the insinuation as to the extent (or lack) of my literacy. This alone places you in a position where you can be judged on the merits of your own words. Since you now seem to be attacking my personal character, that pretty much means you have already lost the argument and proceeded to the "lowest common denominator".

sigh I really should have expects this of you "low brain" types. After all, it seems that the general I.Q. around here is somewhere south of 90 (not like the old days when there were a lot more engineers hanging in the group).

oh well. I said my peace. you don't like it. oh well. Thats life.

Now, personally, I have heard his antics on the air (shortwave and otherwise) and I am of the opinion that we, as a service, would be better off without him.

and here is the point (whether you like it or not):

Ham radio is a licensed service. this means that you are issued a "privilege" to operate. This does not confer upon you any additional rights, period. This also means that the government (the FCC as representative) can revoke or limit these privileges at any time and for any reason they see fit. get the picture?

when you ask a question that is answered in the post your answering well it show you either can't read or don't bother reading

you are also unrecord as supporting the murder of someone that may well be the case, however if that is the result we all need for it to be done in accordance with the rules

no it isn't it your supprt of basical mob rule, anf the fact I support that even a murderer get a fair trail and be treated in the manner he (and I if the FCC's attention came to me) is entilted to never said it did, it also doesn't cost the basic right of every american that you don't respect the rule of law absolutely. I got that you felt that way long ago

FCC nor the rest of the govt is allowed to disgrad itown rules

it is required to follow it procedure wether or not (esp when not) the defendant is unpopular

A single dot does not constitute a trend.

And the "legal no-no" (&#65533;97.315, &#65533;97.317) does not apply to homebrewed amplifiers, which the item in question appears to be. Amateur-to-amateur sales are also exempt.

Hey, BITCH, only me and Ray Chason, Jr. KB3HWB get to dream of * Roger's dick. Got it? K?
>
Roger doesn't want to meet you, he wants to "meat" you. To get on Roger's good side, which is his backside, you must first take him out to dinner to ply him with food and romance.
Don't take Roger to a smorgasbord, however. Most smorgasbord tables and salad bars are far too elevated for him to reach without his platform shoes, and even with his Tom McCann "lifts" he has to grab the edge of the table with both hands to hoist himself up high enough so his thick bifocals will focus on the olives.
Roger can see what is being offered by standing on a chair, but he still has to stand on his little tipsy-toes to reach the edge of the salad bar and that embarrasses him in front of the customers who are of normal height.
The last time he was at a smorgasbord the waitress asked Roger's date, "Can I get your little boy a high chair?"

And after dinner? Don't take little Roger to a singles bar for drinks. Many singles bars do not offer kiddie chairs so that leaves Roger standing amongst the towering crowd. Roger kind of likes this aspect because it puts him in direct eye contact with the single guys' zippers. He is easy to lose in such a crowd but can be easily found by looking around for the single guys who recoil in shock when Roger leaves his business card and phone number on their zipper pulls.

And for Chrissakes don't let Roger drive, either! Not unless he has his kiddie seat in place, otherwise he can't see over the steering wheel.

And last, but far from the least, do NOT let Roger talk you into stopping off at the Shipwreck Lounge for "one last drink". See those "girls" in the Shipwreck? Well, they ain't "girls" even though they dress like it. And see those guys in their black leather pants? They ain't guys, either.
If Roger takes you to the Shipwreck, run, don't walk, to the nearest exit,
call a cab, and go home!
Don't worry, Roger won't chase after you. He will be too occupied with the Lavender Lads to even notice your absence.

Roger will forget all about you after he puts some money in the juke box and plays his disco mantra, "Its Raining Men".

A bit of pontification by an Anonymous "source".

Hmmmmmmm....Seems the box they were within was pretty solid over the last four months...espeically since "professional" planners such as this Anonymous poster failed and failed spectacularly.

And if he or she as a Red Cross manager or agent of some sort doesn't call those Amateurs to plan, practice and drill WITH the Red Cross, as the above would indicate, then s/he has only manufactured the problem.

Yes, I understand that the Red Cross has lots of cellphones and lots of their own radios.

Yet none of the ones they had in New Orleans did them much good...now did they?

So far, from what's been reported in the press over the last four months (and I DO refer to the "general media"...Not just ARRL/CQ) has been that the "blend" was just right...Mobile, adaptable communications that were effective, dependable and cost effective.

> > Hams have a lot to offer, but not > > all groups are stepping up to the modern era and offering the right blend of > > services that meet served agency needs. And their groups are dying.

The people who needed to be "stepping up" were the ones getting bunches of bunches (read that tens-of-millions of dollars) of state and federal monies for all those high tech communications facilities that were SUPPOSED to stand up to these kind of natural disasters...That includes Red Cross, local EMA's, state EMS agencies, Public Safety departments, etc etc etc.

(1) No where in the piece did anyone say that Amateurs had "ruined" their welcome. It simply said the Rose Parade folks are now using other resources. No big deal. Many agencies prefer to keep a tighter rein over persons "working" for them, and I see this as nothing less. Without the "author" telling us who he/she is and from what position of authority they make the claim that Amateurs have "ruined" anything, I find the subject line laughable at best.

Mind you I am not doubting that they (the Rose Parade staff) may have found other communications resoures.

(2) The original comments are from an anonymous poster who makes suggestions that he or she is a person of some importance as a "Red Cross" representitive. Sorry. No name, office, assignment, post, etc, leaves me as ANYTHING but "impressed" with his/her comments about his/her alleged experiences with Amateurs as described as they pertain to other "emergency communications". In short, it sounds like a troll.

(3) This in no way, shape or form mitigates a single bit of anything that has occured or continues to occur as it pertains to the integration of and deployment of Amateur Radio resources for disaster relief. The FACT remains that the American Red Cross, The Department of State, the Department of Homeland Defense, The Defense Department,
The Salvation Army, etc etc etc all maintain MOU's, or Memorandum's of Understanding with the ARRL at the National level and various organizations at the local levels to provide EMERGENCY communicaitons.

In as much as the Rose Parade is an annual event, one would be hard pressed to refer to it as "emergent".

(4) We're still waiting for YOUR presentation of qualifying references on comments YOU have made on other "emergency comms" issues.
YOUR track record on such issues is, in-and-of-itself, lacking.

Why is this posting in this newsgroup AGAIN?

It's been in here before. Same wannabe kinda story.

>The radio group has also tracked floats with global positioning devices and >installed a dozen video cameras up and down the parade route.

Why?!? The "Rose Parade" (Tournament of Roses) is, for over 90 percent of its route a STRAIGHT LINE along Colorado Blvd.
in Pasadena. Good grief, any deviation from the assigned route
could be telephoned in from public call boxes all along Colorado! :-) Total route length is no more than 5 miles.

The floats aren't high-speed vehicles. They can be tracked
on foot by anyone able to walk. Some of the "white suiters"
(parade officials) use little motor scooters along the route.

At least FOUR major network/cable TV camera setups (multiple,
each one) covered this year's event, rain-soaked though it was. Good grief, even Home and Garden Television cable
channel covered the 2006 parade!

Pasadena PD was out in force again...as well as paramedic
ambulances of the Pasadena FD. Both have fine two-way radios
that they use around the clock, a system in-use for decades
in Pasadena. In addition to that, the float builders have their own HTs they use in moving to the parade start point
and for the ending assembly area.

>The negotiations finally broke down Sunday, when the radio amateurs' board >voted to back out of the Jan. 1, 2005, parade.

Okay, so, from that sentence, this Pasadena newspaper story
is from 2004, not last year.

My wife and I watched an HDTV recording of both the 2004 and 2005
Tournament of Roses Parade on Sunday, shot by local independent TV station KTLA. There was no sign that anyone of - or near - the "white suiters" were using any HTs.

>The Tournament will get along without the radio operators this time, Flinn >said, and consider having them back for the 2006 parade. Hubbard said his >wife is looking forward to taking him out for a New Year's Eve party for >the first time in 15 years.

My wife and I watched the rain-sodden Tournament of Roses parade
this Monday morning. [it is already 2006...the parade is never held on a Sunday] No sign that anyone of - or near - the "white
suiters" were using any HTs.

Of course, with all the raincoats (transparent and opaque) that
most were wearing, it might be hard to tell. :-)

It's easy to hide a little Tuna Tin 2 HF CW transmitter... :-)

>"It's going to be a real interesting New Year's.'

Nothing at all "interesting." Just rain and wind. Many floats looked woebegone at the start from the applied decorations struck off by rain. Rain hasn't hit the "Rose Parade" since the 1960s.

The Pasadena Tournament of Roses parade has been going on for 116 years. The 2006 event is the 117th. Radio is only 110
years old and truly portable radios have only been around since after WW2. The parade organizers and planners can, and have, done this successful parade along the straight line of Colorado
Boulevard for many years without amateur radio "help."

It's just another BS posting by a parade wannabe. :-(

LenAnderson@ieee.org

Lennie...just in case your glory days of the Forties, Patti Page songs in the fifties, and black and white TV in the sixties are difficult to let go...this is 2006.
It is probably a good thing for you though, because modern medicines have enabled you to keep your blood pressure in control, your prostate from shriveling into a prune, and has kept arthritis from palsying your one, good hand.
Life has been good to you, Lennie. Or so it seems.

Meeting Woger in real life has gotten harder. Every since Doc (a nasty skinhead) who had promised Woger a beating that Woger wouldn't ever forget, ambushed Woger in a local grocery store (word has it Doc never laid a hand on Woger, but Woger ran and bumped his head and was taken to the local hospital :), our Woger has gotten harder to catch. Still if you go to:

601 Glenhaven, Glendale West Vagina

You can catch Woger hiding behind his curtains like a little bitch.

Didn't the FCC change that in the last year or two? Since it didn't successfully keep the amplifiers off the CB band anyway, I believe they dropped that restriction.

Since I have to head off to work shortly, I don't have time to look it up now but I do remember reading something on that.

273. The Slap Slap of Signal Light Shutters

Saw this in another venue. It has absolutely nothing to do with Amateur Radio, but struck a chord.

The Slap Slap of Signal Light Shutters

--by Bob 'Dex' Armstrong

I saw a piece in a popular magazine awhile ago. It said that the United States Coast Guard had ceased to teach Morse Code. With all the super techno whizbang communication equipment around these days, I guess 'dits' and 'dahs' are looked upon as primitive communication.

That's a damn pity because there is no more comforting sound than the rythmic slap of the signal light shutters. Watching a competent signalman operate a signal light, to me beats watching a concert violinist or an Olympic medal-winning ice skater.

There was something about nighttime steaming, transiting the open expanse of the world's oceans and exchanging seemingly meaningless flashes of light that in truth, were an exchange of clear, concise messages. The signalman and the gentle click of the signal light shutter louvers.

"Sir, that's the J. W. WEEKS, DD-701."

"Very well. Ask them if LT Al Timberlake is aboard. I went to the academy with Big Al."

"Aye sir."

"Yessir, he's aboard. LT CDR now."

"Very well. Tell them to relay my compliments and tell Big Al that 'Short Stack' passed him during the midwatch."

Little messages exchanged in darkness. Communication between members of America's great saltwater family. Those fingers of light always made me feel that I was a part of a big organization.

Things that were so much a part of our life, have gone out of existence in the ensuing years. They tell me that torpedomen and quartermasters have joined gunners mates in the lost ratings of yesteryear. I know nothing lasts forever and that there's nothing worse to subsequent generations than an old bastard reliving cherished memories of the past. But with the navy looking to boost its recruiting, it might be beneficial to revisit some of the things that were so meaningful to the bluejackets who manned our ships long ago.

Tradition is a valuable asset. Not that to honor tradition, you have to set aside technological advance. Not at all. But many of the 'sailor skills' are being discounted. Consider this. In battle, when you lose power and your computer-generated mo-jo is lost, or your batteries run out. Or the enemy detonates some hootenanny that scrubs your database. Will there be anyone who can take a legitimate sextant observation?

What happens if the bad guys find a way to negate satellite positioning? What happens to the poor bastards bobbing around in a lifeboat with a signalman and an operating flashlight?

How can you call a man an American bluejacket who can't tie a bowline or read flags? At some point, you stop being a bluejacket and become a technician. That's a sad fact, but a fact, nonetheless.

The navy used to sell salt water adventure. It used to fill its recruiting offices with posters of smiling bluejackets visiting exotic ports. Ships at sea. Extolling the qualities found in elite service like submarines. Now, you see posters promising monetary incentives, education benefits and pledges of high-level technical training. It is not an 'All for the Navy' navy, anymore. It's a 'What's in it for me?' navy. You can see the effect on the boatservice. Interchangeable crews. That's like a shared bride.

Somebody needs to reinitiate the concept of 'a lad and his boat'. I see nuclear power sailors with the names of a dozen boats embroidered on their vests. How can a lad develop love and loyalty to twelve boats? Simple answer. He can't.

We need to figure out some way of reconnecting men with ships. We need to develop, to reestablish the relationship between sailors and their ships. We need to shitcan the term, 'Get my ticket punched on such and such a ship.' I find the term 'ticket punched' repulsive. I rode with men who truly loved the ship. She has been ours for better than 45 years and will continue to be until the day we leave the planet. It is sad that with the 'interchangeable parts' commands of today, a boatsailor doesn't develop the love we were given.

But, as I said earlier, there's nothing worse than a nostalgic old coot who's out of step with the march of time. An old sonuvabitch whose era has come and gone.

But you can't fault a man who loved his service. The men. His wardroom. His boat. An old bastard who can still hear the gentle slap, slap, slap of the bridge signal light shutters.

It's so easy to look up facts nowadays, I'm surprised that you were unable to find this: "A 17-year-old named Haddaway had built his entire station from absolute scratch, including the making of his own vacuum tubes...." QST February 1921.

See? Fact, not an opinion attempted to be passed as a fact. You should try that sometime. But then that would be impossible for you, for you'd have to list references.

Jeffie, if it's all the same to you (and it won't be),
I'll just "see" some professional documents from RCA, GE,
Raytheon, Westinghouse, etc., on "constructing" tubes.
They've had a few years of experience in that, wouldn't you say? I'd have to travel a few thousand miles away to get most of that info and there's little return-on-investment of my time to do that in order to satisfy a league Believer. Not this week for me.

Frank Gilliland thoughtfully provided a link to an EXPERIMENTER'S website on the "constructing" of tubes.

Further, having been in correspondence with G0UPL in the UK, I have some further links (and some interesting downloads) on making one's own glow-discharge numeric indicator ("Nixie" tm of Burroughs Corp.) displays.

All that might be academically intersting to leaf through to some...who will probably never ever pull a good vacuum for any purpose (other than getting a vacuous response in newsgroupie-ism).

I really DON'T think it is interesting to me to know all about "constructing vacuum tubes" as given by some amateur radio membership organization publication.
Tubes (vacuum tubes, that is) can still be purchased where needed for replacement purposes. The cost is 5 to 20 times what it once was (depending on demand), but then there's not much of a demand for those things.

"Constructing" a vacuum tube innards is relatively easy. The truly difficult part is pulling a good vacuum on the bulb and getting rid of extraneous gasses within. Now, I've had some slight experience on "pulling a good vacuum" for testing purposes and that requires considerable work and expensive equipment. [Torricelli would be amazed at the processes used over a half-century ago in production vacuum tube work]

Better yet, Jeffie, why don't you get REALLY "build-from-scratch" and go mine natural quartz in Brazil, then bring it home to the islands and slice it up to the right crystal angle, grind it down to the right thickness, measure it to better than 10 PPM in frequency, mount it in your own holder, and use it for your super-spay-shull build-it-yourself super-duper QRP transmitter for use in the year 2006?

Gosh, I think re-visiting the 1920s in amateur radio is such great fun in building-it-oneself, don't you? :-)

I'll bet you even have a forge and an anvil so that you can make horseshoes for your land transport. Real do-it-yourself projects with a practical side!

Have you slaughtered and skinned animals, cured the hides, sewn the leather pieces together to make a saddle for that land transport? Does the ARRL have a publication covering that? Why not? The Army Signal Corps designed and had Motorola make a "horse mobile" two-way HF radio in 1943. It was called "the pogo stick." Of course the mounted cavalry was disbanded before production was finished, but that's another story entirely.

Start preparing for your regular work. Classes begin on 9 Jan 06, don't they?

Thank you ever so much and buy, buy,

LenAnderson@ieee.org

did you check the date?

are you aware of the current date?

can you in fact read what lens writes?

you tnagental responses are looking like stevie of number of years back, things have not turned out wel for him

He never said someone could not make a vacum tube, indeed I suspect that some my own gear could the job fair well with some adaption (a vacuam system able to do metal dosipiting on telscope mirror should be ale to manage it)

the SCA (www,sca,org) for more details is one a several gruops that prevervses and revives old tech indeed theire are old tech I find interesting the rsult of which is that I am likely the best swordsmen that pots in RRAP (I know BTW I am not the best swordsman in the Us ARS but that is another matter)

but the obsesion of many hams with the past< which would be a passing matter it not for the fforts of some to contiues to try and enclude it in the regs of the ARS and assign public RF to it, must be looked at in terms of the golas of the service which inculding advancing the state of the radio art enough of history lessions can we give those a rest at least for month or so then maybe someone new will come by and n"need" to be educated on all the obselete stuff that is gone on about

If the beacon is broadcasting it's current coordinates, then it really doesn't matter where the recevier is, does it? Only that he's able to pick up the signal and relay the coordinates as received.

In that case, a 14 MHz signal ought to be receivable by more people than a 2 meter or 70 cm signal, right? So using a HF band ought to allow more reports to come in ...

(Or am I missing something here?)

IARN/AARA/K1MAN OPERATIONS FOR 2006 AND BEYOND

INTERNATIONAL AMATEUR RADIO NETWORK (IARN)
EMERGENCY NCS INFORMATION I-VANS STILL NEEDED
IN SEVERAL AREAS - ACT TODAY!

IARN, the International Amateur Radio Network, is now a;so activating in Mode 3 for Hurricane Beta. Traffic is being accepted at IARNtraffic@aol.com. Please advise IARN with regard to your amateur radio emergency traffic operations at 207 495 2215.
IARN is sponsored by AARA, the American Amateur Radio Association. JoinToday.

OFFICIAL IARN OPERATING FREQUENCIES:

During a world wide communications emergency, I A R N may use SSB on 14.275 MHz. as a primary control and logistics frequency; 14.127 MHz. LSB (Sel call KMAN) for AMTOR traffic; and 14.272 MHz. as a secondary SSB frequency, all three for emergency and some health and welfare traffic. Most health and welfare traffic should normally be routed by E-Mail to:

IARNtraffic@aol.com

Please use the IARN message format as detailed below.

IARN EMERGENCY ACTIVATION MODES:

IARN emergency activations are classified in five different modes:

Mode 1 Full activation, continuous on air traffic/bulletins, continuous NCS duty/bulletins.

Mode 2 Semi activation, intermittent on air traffic, continuous NCS duty.

Mode 3 Full alert, continuous monitoring. Fully activated for receiving health and welfare traffic at IARNtraffic@aol.com. (Check 14.265 and 14.300 if 14.275 and 14.272 are not activated.)

Mode 4 Semi alert, general monitoring only.

Mode 5 No activation.

IARN INFORMATION BULLETINS:

I A R N operates all information bulletins on 14.275 MHz., 3.975 MHz., and 3.890 MHz., all plus or minus QRM, 16 or less, or 24 hours per day where necessary, for the most efficient dissemination of information of direct interest to the Radio Amateur. Check www.K1MAN.com for the latest published transmitting schedules (if any). On air information bulletins might not be scheduled at all during emergency activation periods.

OFFICIAL IARN MESSAGE FORMAT:

Please use the IARN message format suggested below. You will then receive an E-Mail response with an alpha-numeric traffic designator (or official IARN traffic "number.") Use this IARN traffic designator (added to line 2 of the IARN message format) to speed up references this message or request at all times and to help to drastically increase IARN message handling efficiency. Try to use IARN and ARRL traffic message codes (listed below) where possible.

Date time group: (added by IARN)
(1)Message designator: (added by IARN, see below):
(2)Priority: (see below)
(3)Originator's call (if any):

(7)Their name (who you are inquiring about or directing message to):
(8)Address line 1:
(9)Address line 2:
(10)Their telephone:
(11)Their E-mail:
(12)Signature (who is making the inquiry or author of the message):
(13)Signature's return collect telephone number:
(14)Signature's E-mail:
(15)Message send code: (added by IARN, see below)
(16)Message activity code: (added by IARN, see below)
(17)Message status: (added by IARN, see below):
(18) Message text (if any, use line 6, insread, if possible)
(19) Reply message: (use IARN and/or ARL codes where possible)

MESSAGE PRIORITY CODES (line 2):

1 = Routine priority; 2 = More Than Routine Priority; 3 = Expedite Priority; 4 = Very High Priority; 5 = Highest (Emergency) Priority.

jump team operator, and three inquiries made about this message.

I-VAN.....International Amateur Radio Network
low Cost Amateur Radio Emergency Communications Van

The International Amateur Radio Network Peace Corps Foundation is a 501(c)(3) non profit tax exempt public service organization organized by the American Amateur Radio Association, AARA. For help in financing your new I-VAN, contact us at 207 495 2215 today or write to IARN, Box 440, Belgrade Lakes, Maine 04918.

You and a friend, or you and your local radio club or church, or just you, can purchase a small and low cost second hand van. Build a double decker rack to sleep two and a small radio table for an HF SSB transceiver (minimum) and AMTOR (preferred) setup. A small porta-potty (available at Wal-Mart in the sporting goods section) and a small portable 110 volt AC/12 volt DC generator plus one or more storage batteries and your I-VAN is almost ready. Add a DC cooler for food, water, etc., sleeping bags, and some cooking items, etc. and you are now fully ready for emergency deployment. Remember spare gas and oil for the generator. You are a ham! Use your imagination and ingenuity.

Head toward a hurricane/disaster zone. At some point you will meet cars heading out as they evacuate. Many will have cel phones and many of those will be non functional or overloaded because of the very real communications emergency that you are there to assist with. Now you park in some public place and solicit OUTGOING TRAFFIC from anybody who is in need.

The messages are best sent out on 20 meters during a communications emergency, or back to IARN headquarters or to your home base by AMTOR (preferred), SSB voice, or even CW for handling by ordinary hard line telephones.

During non emergency times, set up in a public place and offer to send Valentine, Christmas, or whatever messages the same way. This is great public exposure and good PR for amateur radio.

If you affiliate with IARN through a free International Amateur Radio Club Charter, you can use IARN's tax exempt status to get local merchants to donate, tax deductible, to finance the purchase of your low cost I-VAN (with their logos on the side). This is a very simple project; keep it that way!

Call IARN today for more information about IARN's ongoing I-VAN program at 207 495 2215.

73 and GL de K1MAN

K1MAN is legal. IARN is legal. AARA is legal and your modern alternative to the outdated ARRL. Join AARA now and be a part of the glory of ham radio. Apply at www.k1man.com for a true ham radio future.

Hans's sea stories are boring, but your stories are always rude and mostly unreadable. What the he11 are "golas" and "fforts", and I never saw a "lession" on history --- mayhap the lesion is on your temporal

IIRC, those rules date back to 1978.

They're a result of widespread use of external "linear" amplifiers by cb and freeband users.

FCC thought that outlawing the manufacture and sale of such amplifiers would decrease their use, which is completely illegal. Of course no such effect
occurred, and the manufacture, sale and use of such amplifiers by cb
and freeband users continues even today.

The only real effect those rules have is on amateurs, who could no longer
buy amplifiers capable of operation on 10 and 12 meters unless modified,
and who could no longer buy amplifiers suitable for use with HF QRP rigs at all. The rules also affect kits, leaving homebrew as the only option.

Amateurs were punished for what nonamateurs did.

One manufacturer found a way to produce a legal QRP-to-100W HF amplifier, however. The amplifer is designed so that it can only work with the rig for which it is designed, because it needs control information from the main rig's microprocessor control system. The controlling rig is designed so that it will not transmit outside the amateur bands above 25 MHz, and that feature is not defeatable by anything other than a rewrite of the firmware.

So both the rig and its amplifier (which is meant to be mounted inside the rig) are useless for cb and freeband use. FCC has accepted the design.

Yes, the reason and date are correct. There's an extensive discussion of the docket on the ARRL website.

Because the current rules have not stopped the illegal CB use, the FCC proposed to eliminate these restrictions but has not yet acted to do so. The use of these amplifiers is already prohibited by the CB regulations and the additional regulation had no impact since there was no significant level of enforcement.

Reminds me of a state that hired a consultant to evaluate what new laws were needed to reduce the number and severity of car/bicycle accidents. His conclusion was that the state needed to enforce the laws already on the books and that no new laws were needed.

Yeah...That's basically his problem.

He started a new "policy" subscription group that has only had four posters. And that INCLUDES him. And already he's "bragging" about the "administrative options" he has to moderate or ban members.

And he calls OTHERS "control freaks"...! ! ! ! ! !

Good luck in the contest, everything on my board is LEGAL. If they shut my board down then they will have to shut down all the other Anime websites, along with the anime newsgroups, not to mention Suncoast, Circuit City, Best Buy, Amazon Dot Com, Ebay, and a number of other stores that sales anime and hentai, including the same stuff on my board. Anime Hentai which is on my board is legal and it's always been legal. but hey if you've got the balls here who to get a hold of

http://www.ncmec.org/

They have a thing on their site to file complaints which is then forwarded to the Department of Justice. OR

http://www.usdoj.gov/criminal/ceos/

which is ran by the Department of Justice, they of course tell you to go the website I mention above. But Like I stated good luck, because If I have to be shut down then ALL those other places I mention have to as well, and I and the rest of the anime community will fight it.

101 "words" without a point being made.

101 "words" without proper punctuation, capitalization or organization of thought or topic.

the only p"problem" with your line of reasoning in this matter is that it is in fact logical, and that the Govt is involved to end the reg today would be an addistion in some eyes that the FCC made a mistakes in writing them and no crat wants to admit a mistake eiter his own or that of anynother crats lest he be denounced as makking a mistake himself some day

the same reason keep in place the silly about rnage of conatct (being 100 or 150 miles I don't recall) on a band that can support long range with breaking the other rules even I have borke that by accientedt near the last peak thinking i was tlaking to someone around springfeild (without checking it was ILLinois) til is became clear iit wasn't) thus breaking the rule

Steve, you are the sychophant of the amateur magazines, but the ass of RRAP. When QST and CQ see some of your RRAP posts, you'll not be seeing your smarmy letters to the editor in print any more.

Our question pool is no longer under the thumb of the FCC. It is entirely an amateur endeavor. The VEC may also send code at any speed they choose, as long as they string out the between word spaces.
Another poster said he couldn't copy 5WPM unless it was sent at the 30WPM rate over a 5 day period. Hi!

Jeff Hermann say use it or lose it is hogwash. We lost it, and as America goes, so goes Canada. I'm sure the McKenzie brothers will be thanking us.

>From ARRL website:

Canadian Amateurs to Lose 220-222 MHz
January 3, 2006 -- Barring an outpouring of "compelling arguments to the contrary," Industry Canada will reallocate the 220-222 MHz portion of 220-225 MHz from the Canadian amateur service to the mobile and fixed services. Under the provisional reallocation, which will take effect January 25, the amateur service will be allocated the 219-220 MHz subband on a secondary basis. Additionally, the amateur service may be permitted use of 220-222 MHz "in exceptional circumstances on a secondary basis to assist in disaster relief efforts."

ARRL Chief Executive Officer David Sumner, K1ZZ, commented: "The US and Canada generally coordinate their mobile allocations because of the long border we share. The fact that it has taken Canada 15 years to get around to implementing a mobile allocation at 220-222 MHz is indicative of the fact that the reallocation that took effect in the US in 1991 has never lived up to the claims of its proponents."

In fact, the document that includes the proposed reallocation, Canada Gazette Notice DGTP-004-05, Proposals and Changes to the Spectrum in Certain Bands Below 1.7 GHz, cites the earlier US reallocation as part of its justification for the change. Radio Amateurs of Canada opposed the reallocation. Comments are due to Industry Canada by January 26.

Really?

How much is 220-222 used in Canada?

Will 222-225 be overcrowded because of the loss of 220-222?

What justification can there be for hams having 5 MHz of prime VHF spectrum if those 5 MHz aren't being fully utilized?

Actually, the difference is who met the various requirements and who didn't.

An ability or aptitude is only one factor.

Maybe not.

But they will be a better artist than the person with a high aptitude for art who never studies.

Athletic accomplishment is not developed by "study". It is developed by training, practice and competition. All the aptitude or ability will not amount to anything without training.

Without the ability or aptitude, a person will not become a world-class athlete. But a person with very little "sports ability" who trains will be a better athlete than the person with high aptitude who does not train.

> If one doesn't have the aptitude for "hearing" morse code

There are obviously different levels of Morse Code aptitude. But the person who does not study will not learn it, regardless of aptitude.

Most people learn to understand and speak a language by the age of three years, and if the opportunity exists, to read and write by the age of seven or eight years (if not earlier). Both are much more complex cognitive tasks than learning Morse Code at 20 wpm or so.

I suspect that Jeff's reasons are similar to your reasons for holding fast to old requirements in local real estate zoning and oppose modernization of those regulations.

> Amateur radio is NOT a job, NOT a craft, guild, or union.

That's true.

Does that mean there should be no requirements for it?

No standards? No accomplishments or skills?

You seem to think so.

We have seen what happens to a radio service like that. It's called cb.

Brian,

I'm not a "clown".

What's with the name-calling? Are you desperate for attention? Or do you think such behavior is somehow justified because I disproved your claim?

I asked significant, relevant questions about the use of 220-222 MHz by Canadian hams. Try answering them - if you can.

In case you didn't know, 220-225 is not worldwide exclusive amateur territory. If hams don't use it enough, why shouldn't it be reassigned to services that will use it?

> why did you cut this: "and as America goes, so goes Canada."

Because it's not relevant. Also not really true in many cases.

We lost 220-222 about 15 years ago. Hardly proof of your claim.

Canada has universal health care - USA doesn't. Canada dropped mandatory code testing some time back but worked out an ingenious compromise. USA can't seem to find a consensus out of 18 proposals.

Canada doesn't just follow everyhting the USA does.

You said you were going to "bury the crap".

That could only mean one of three things. I did have my hopes up.

That's your problem. You don't SEE your problem. Everyone else does. Seek help.

I read it just fine. You said you were going to bury the crap.
You're crap. I had my hopes up.

No, it's not.

According to Lennie, anyway.

Lennie has blatantly lied in the past stating that he does not sue

All YOU know, Brainie, is that you try to lie and deceive in this forum and I won't let you get away with it. Real "issues" are not discussed nor "debated" in this "forum". With the lies and innuendo bestowed by you and your bretheren, it's nye-on impossible.

And what YOU "know" fits in a thimble, and leaves room for Oh no, Markie, I have >>NO<< illusions about having any "sqeaky appearance" in RRAP.

Indeed, when one wrestles with pigs, one must expect to get some pig#### on himself.

Thankfully I have a gas water heater and shower frequently.

Exactly my point Walt. In fact anyone in authority who takes a look at the anti-M3 "they are all the same" bigotry on here (which sadly you've often been a psrt of), will then discount all rational suggestions. I too think there should be both an age limit (minimum :-)) and a time limit, but I don't think either will be achieved by slagging off CBers and M3s willy nilly.

True Peter. I have the 12 wpm morse, and I enjoy the mode. And I passed an essay exam many years ago. But that doesn't make me any better an amateur. It was necessary for the time, that's all. We nearly all built then and we shared some bands with CW people who _had_ to be able to make us understand if there was an emergency. (The Bs weren't on those bands so didn't need the morse.). Non-one needs the morse now (but it's still fun) and few people build. We _are_ really now nothing more than appliance operators, who hopefully have some concept of transmitting cleanly, apart from anyone who likes to choose some pioneering activity. All strength to both types of amateur, I say. Oh, and one other thing: we do enjoy heaps of spectrum. But if newsgroups carry on spouting the anti- line persistently enough, we may lose it. Good, some may say, it isn't what _we_ want to _you_ can't have it either!

Wrong. The RAE that Peter and I (callsign not that far away from Peter's) sat certainly was an exam. It required you to demonstrate real knowledge of things you needed to know then. From memory, it was 3 hours (maybe 2) of essay type questions that could not be guessed. You had to demonstrate understanding. And I know there were lots of employers who considered it a good vocational qualification. But the need for that particular knowledge has changed. We don't claim any superiority.

I am sure they are the difference is that I am telling the truth and you are lying steve the use of the word Fuck is not proof or even evidence that there is problem with the speaker

all words have there place

Getting lazy with all that alcohol you're consuming lately, no doubt.

My "point" is that you, Toiddie and Lennie are all products of the public education system of Illinois. That having been said, I am eternally glad that MY kids AREN'T.

Nope.

You keep pretending to be my wife (ie: posting as W5AMY)

Ergo you hope to "get lucky".

And I'll say it again.

Pleasae get this right.

Your allegation of my saying "lying is child abuse" does NOT appear ANYwhere in that quote.

Nice try.

Hi Lardass Davies, posting as a woman. Well, that's not a stretch, since you are a whining cunt and the only reason you are saying that is because you wish to give Roger a blowjob as he drives his much better

the same place you get the power to lie and claim "...Sorry For Mark Morgan's (KB9RQZ) Censorship Attempts..."

you seem to think you have the right to decide what actions other people may take steve you don't the founder of this thread was troll he has to right to troll, I and anyone has to to try and cut through his

you are alying Sack of shit

you don't know the menaing of the words you use, like "censorship" nobdoy was being censored I was and am still just trying to devert attention form a thread I think should die off I am removeing no post nor stoping anybody from making one, that would be censorship

grow and learn the meaning of the word you use

you might also try learning the difference between the truth and a lie

you clearly don't that difference or are just choosing to avoid it further down thread form the site of the censorship I will use the the 575 number google also records 9150 posts from stevie that means 6.28 percent of all stevie posts are idnetified by google.com as acts where stevie tries to censor the words of other posters

quite a record stevie I do hope you are proud of it

Nope. It's a psychological one.

One can be in perfect PHYSICAL health and still manifest a PSYCHOLOGICAL disorder. Lying has nothing to do with your metabolism.

Nope. I feel quite well.

Sure it is.

That YOU are an ADMITTED liar and that putting you in that basket makes you uncomfortable is just too bad, Markie.

Ya shudda considered that (a) before you started lying and (b)
before you bragged about BEING a liar.

Nope. Not a one.

I do.

YOU on the otherhand have yet to show where I HAVEN'T, other than to express your frustration that I refuse to yield to an admitted liar.

> cuting more repitous crap

"repetitious"

QUOTE

> ratonalizing his sickness

Those were YOUR words.

Here are mine, since you "commented" on them but didn't cite what you were replying to (very poor netiquette, by the way...)

QUOTE:

Untrue. Many kids can do exactly that too. Most don't, but then most abused spouses and domestic partners don't "run away or defend themselves" either.

UNQUOTE.

Number one cause of premature death of adults in families under age 50 is homicide-by-partner. Most of those cases were of persons killed by spouses/partners who had abused them before.

This is a fact.

> > > And that Stevie thinks about kiddy porn to makes such judgements and to > > > bring them out on his own proves who is sick
> more rationalizing his remarks about kiddy porn

More of me reinstating comments you are commenting on but didn't quote:

QUOTE:

As much as I hate to do it, Markie, being made alert for such potential abuses of children is a requirement of my job. There are classes specifically taught to recognize such potential activities.

UNQUOTE.

That's not "rationalizing", Markie. It's the truth.

UNQUOTE

No matter how often you "cut" it, Markie, it remains true.

Sorry it runs counter to your pattern of conduct and deceit.

K1MAN EDITORIAL - ED060106A - AN EDICT TO ALL WHO OPPOSE K1MAN/IARN/AARA

>From your one true leader at www.K1MAN.com

AARA, IARN, and K1MAN 2006 AGENDA

1. Get ND8V off the air.

2. Get a court decision on scheduled K1MAN and W1AW amateur information bulletins.

3. Get Riley Hollingsworth out of the FCC and over to ARRL (as a W1AW paid control operator) where he really belongs.)

4. Get ARRL criminally prosecuted for deleting the Goldwater Law from their FCC Rule Book in 1990.

5. Ignore K3VR (poor little Brian).

Well it's 2006 and we have a busy slate this year here at AARA and IARN
Headquarters. Let's talk about this agenda in more detail:

1. Get ND8V off the air.

We hoped that ND8V would reform in 2005 but, as Dan says, you can't fix stupid! Mike thinks that the Goldewater Law (making intentional radio interference a felony - 2 years in federal prison and/or $10,000 file PER OCCURRENCE) has been repealed. How do you spell moron? Like this: M O R O N! Hey Mike, Jack Gerritson was just convicted under the Goldwater Law and faces 15 years in jail! There are enough Felony Complaint Affidavits on file with the Justice Department (NOT THE FCC!!!!!) against ND8V to put him in Leavenworth for the balance of his life (Mike is age 50).

Now we are going to promote as many FCAs against ND8V as posible. Our goal is 500 by December 31, 2006. To get a blank FCA form, send an SASE to K1MAN, Box 440, Belgrade Lakes, Maine 04918. When you hear ND8V intentionally interfering with another station as he does daily, fill out the official one page FCA form, have it notarized, and send it to: Justice Department, Washington, D.C. Fat Mikey is going down, just like Garretson! Isn't it great to live in America?

2. Get a court decision on scheduled K1MAN and W1AW amateur information bulletins.

As WB2OTK and K4NBC have observed, "If W1AW can schedule amateur information bulletins, K1MAN can as well." As Thomas Jefferson would have agreed, "This is self evident." But apparently not the "brain dead" FCC. Actually, not the whole FCC, just Riley Hollingsworth, who was sick on the day ther taught law at law school.

3. Get Riley Hollingsworth out of the FCC and over to ARRL (as a W1AW paid control operator) where he really belongs.

Actually, Hollingsworth will also be doing some serious jail time since he has encouraged numerous radio amateurs to "talk over" the K1MAN Bulletin Service, a clear criminal violation of the Goldwater Law.

4. Get ARRL criminally prosecuted for deleting the Goldwater Law from their FCC Rule Book in 1990.

This is a no brainer. The effect of deleting the Goldwater Law from the ARRL FCC Rule book has been to encourage hams to "talk over" the K1MAN bulletins; that's why such is a felony.

What is Ham Radio?

(Preface)
It is becoming increasingly difficult to fly the flag for decency and for civilised behaviour in Radio Hammery. Even the Usenet newsgroups dedicated to the cause have degenerated into a hotbed of abusive onslaughts by those who ought to know better.
However, there still exists the fundamental basis on which Ham Radio is based, and that will never die. This FAQ ("What Is Ham Radio?") will be regularly published and will not be shouted or bullied down. It is important that those of a technical bent, who are the natural seed-corn of Radio Hammery
and who gravitate towards us to be the real novitiate, can still find us, (and know that we are still here), their fellows.

-----ooooo-----

Please remember that this FAQ is a _POSITIVE EXHORTATION_
to you to exert yourselves to join our fraternity! (If you find otherwise, then perhaps you are already classing yourself in the mediocre groups of those who are criticised in the FAQ and from whom we _MUST_ dissociate? If so - it's never too late for a re-taxonomisation on your part - there's nothing elitist about us, and we welcome all those who are prepared to put themselves
out in order to join our ranks!)

-----ooooo-----
(Article)
So,.....What is Ham Radio?

Ham Radio is a technical pursuit for those who are interested in the science of radio wave
propagation and who are also interested in the way that their radios function. It has a long-standing tradition of providing a source of engineers who
are born naturals.

Ham Radio awakens in its aficionados a whole-life
fascination with all things technical and gives
an all-abiding curiosity to improve one's scientific knowledge. It's a great swimming pool, please dive in!

This excitement causes a wish to share the experience
with ones fellow man, and shows itself in the gentlemanly traditions of Ham Radio.

Radio Hams are in a unique privileged position in that they can construct and operate their own equipment! No-one else has this privilege. Users, such as broadcasters,
the po lice and armed farces, CBers and mobile phone users have to purchase ready-made gear. Manufacturers are not licensed to operate their gear. Radio Hams
are qualified to design, build and then operate their own pieces of equipment. They do this with gusto, and also repair and modify their own equipment. This is a privilege well worth the effort to gain, and one to be jealously guarded.

The excitement that drives a Radio Ham starts with relatively simple technologies at first, perhaps making his own Wimshurst machine and primary cells. Small pieces of test equipment follow, possibly multimeters and signal generators. Then comes receivers and transmitters. It is with the latter that communication with like-minded technically motivated people takes off. The scope for technical development grows with the years
and now encompasses DSP and DDS. There is also a great deal of excitement in the areas of computer programming to
be learnt and applied.

The technical excitement motivates Radio Hams to compete with each other to determine who has designed and manufactured
the best-quality station. This competitiveness is found in DXing, competitions and fox-hunts.

-----OOOOO----

However, beware! A Ham Radio licence is such a desirable thing to have that there are large numbers of people who wish to be thought of
as Radio Hams when, in fact, they are nothing of the kind! Usually such people are a variation of the CB Radio hobbyist; they buy their radios off the shelf and send them back to be repaired; they are not interested in technical discussion
and sneer at those who are; they have no idea how their radios work inside and have no wish to find out;
they are free with rather silly personal insults;
they have not satisfied any technical qualification
and their licences prevent the use of self-designed-and-built equipment.

These CB types engage in the competitive activities
with their Cheque-Book-purchased off-the-shelf radios
in a forlorn effort to prove that they are Radio Hams.

No _REAL_ Radio Hams are deceived by such people!

-----ooooo-----

One such CB type is the so-called "Not-Ham". Otherwise known as the CBer-Masquerading-As-A-Radio-Ham, this type
had their background in the hobby that is CB Radio and not in the technical pursuits that lead up to a coveted Ham licence.
Easily recognised by their boasts of the criminal activity of 11 metre SSB operation, one wonders why they don't go back to the CB Bands if such bands are dearer in their hearts than are the Ham Bands? No _REAL Radio Hams associate with those who made an illegal installation of transmitting equipment before being
in possession of an appropriate licence.

-----ooooo-----

One infallible way to disambiguate the CB Radio Hobbyist
from the _REAL_ Radio Ham is to solicit their view of the difference between CB Radio and Ham Radio. A Radio Ham will perceive Ham Radio to be a technical pursuit and will perceive CB Radio to be a social communications facility
no different in essence to a land-line telephone or a GSM mobile in the hands of a 6-year-old. Thus a Radio Ham could also hold a CB licence safe in the knowledge that such a licence says no more about him than having a land-line telephone, whilst continuing to regard Ham Radio as a separate technical pursuit.

A CB Radio hobbyist, on the other hand, sees no difference between a Ham Radio licence and a CB Radio licence. To him, they are sisters-under-the-skin. Wrongly, the CB Radio Hobbyist then tries to classify himself as the equal of the Radio Ham when, in fact, he is nothing of the kind. A sure sign of a CB Radio hobbyist is if he holds, or has ever held, a licence issued under the gangrenous degeneration that is the M3/CB Fools' Licence scheme.

-----ooooo-----

One group of people who claim to be of the standard of Radio Hams but who are in reality nothing more than an apology for the failure of a CBer are those class B licensees who falsely proclaimed that they were against
the use of a Morse Test to control access to the HF bands, until, that is, a test was introduced at their intellectual level, the intellectual level of 6-year-olds.

6 year-olds simply lack the mathematical tool kit to enable them to handle even the simplest algebraic manipulation
for Ohm's Law and thus, the disgraceful Class Ber's in the aforementioned category are not Radio Hams by any stretch of the imagination!

Remember - A sure sign of a CB Radio hobbyist is if he holds,
or has ever held, a licence issued under the gangrenous
degeneration that is the M3/CB Fools' Licence scheme!

Roger is it true that you have a cold chamber for Marie so you can keep her cold enough not to stink. That way you can thaw her out every once in a while so she can sleep in the same bed as you. That way you have some more of that West Virginia hillbilly lovin. White trash boy.

oohhh...you gonna make Curtains Boy mad.

Pussy Boy hates to be made fun of. Roger stands five foot five in his stocking feet and can barely see over the condiment table at the local smorgasboard.
See that salad bar? See those black olives? Grab one of those plastic spoons and smack that nasty nose that is stuck in the Spinach. Hit the nose hard!
What you will next see is Woger recoiling in pain as he withdraws his snot laden nose from the lettuce.
Roger dislikes smorgasbords because, quite simply, he is not tall enough to see what is on the table.
The Little Munchkin takes offense when the Wait Person offers him a kiddie seat.
Roger is fifty years old...but still five foot five...and fat.

No, Markie...I do not post "#####" to the NG. You do. Tons of it.
Even in the subject lines where even the casual reader who might otherwise wish to avoid seeing such profanity can't help but be offended.

Yet there it is...Mark Morgan forcing his profanity and obscenities on anyone and everyone he can.

THAT is "#####".

Roger haunts, and prefers, The Shipwreck Lounge.

,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,,

Wrong, Lloyd. I've never been to the Shipwreck Lounge, Fat Boy. I no longer suck cocks, either. I used to , but when I moved back home with Marie I had to stop.
When Mommie died she made me promise that I would not stick so much as a single dick in my mouth and I have kept my promise..with one exception. I did suck Lloyd off one afternoon, but he gave me a pizza in exchange.
It was worth it, too; Lloyd got sucked off and I got a whole plate full of mushrooms and sausage.
Those were the days. Now when I see a pizza I think of Lloyd's penis covered in mozzeralla cheese with a mushroom on top.
I can't help but salivating...mmmmm! Mushrooms and Dick! It is a glorious combination.

Re-post this as often as you like, Markie, because no matter how many times you do it, (unless you forge it, which is most likely) you will not see me say what you accuse me of saying.

No, you did not.

You are (unsuccessfully) trying to insist that some words mean something other than what I said.

Walt, Meet Mark "Markie" Morgan, KB9RQZ. Markie is a functionally illiterate, socially inept, welfare dependent, sexually deviant alcoholic miscreant of American society.

Markie claims to have an IQ of 248. For reasons I am sure you can see, we seriously doubt his honesty (although he gives us dozen of other reasons to do that).

Markie has in the past tried to regale us with his alleged skill and knowledge of all-things-computing, but can't seem to get a spell checker to work.

Go figure.

His latest demonstration of skill is to bomb the NG with over 700 posts in an attempt to harrass me. All it's done is solidify everyone else's opinion on his mental instability. Witness his taglines that have my home address but someone else's phone number. (Oh, by the way...Markie likes to make up screen names of dead children and use them in order to circumvent Google posting limits...)

So...there you go. On behalf of American Amateurs everywhere, I extend my apologies to those of you "across the pond" who ahve to see this creep's foul mouth and childish rantings in this forum.

Where did I say "when", Markie?

Even the courts in Michigan have priorities and other obligations.

in part is becuase in your eagerness to flame me you did not bother reading the exchange Jeff was the one claiming that motivation was everything

therefore your statement is more proper at proving that Jeff is not a

but even that would be a lie just less of one

what is realy proven is that Jeff was lying when he claimed motivations all that seperated people acheivements becuase you care about the law the FCC (and most law enforcement don't)

everyone should be advised that The following person has been advocating the abuse of elders making false charges of child rape, rape in general
forges post and name

he may also be making flase reports of abusing other in order to attak and cow his foes
he also shows signs of being dangerously unstable

first I'll ober look for this post the fact you just lied about what you said
instead I''l assume you said it you would still be lying on the 28th you now claim that you said the above but steve it has been 12 day since your "deadline"

no matter how you look at it you are lying lets see steve was caught lyig about th words he used to threaten to sue me (you realy need to ake notes on your lies I guess)

he continues to claim the kiidy porn is somehow not child abuse (a big lie)

he claims he has done nothing to pull RRAP into the sewer

he has lied about where I went to school

he has conitued his efforts at sexual harrassment

he has exposed his paranoia (further)

he contine his own scatological refferneces en mass

he lies about my personal desires

in other words he has been his normal shit head self

everyone should be advised that The following person
has been advocating the abuse of elders making false charges of child rape, rape in general
forges post and name

he may also be making flase reports of abusing other in order to attak and cow his foes
he also shows signs of being dangerously unstable

he regualrly makes threats of aresst or of the power to confine folks againsthere will

he is lying of course

you reapet it but you posted it it was an assine staement then andrreamins so today

but you said "lying was the same as Kiddy porn"

unless you are saying Kiddy porn is not child abuse then you said lying was the same a child abuse

What I wrote has nothing whatever to do with Steve at all.

I've provided no proof that Steve is doing anything. I wrote that I firmly believe that you attended no public nor any private school in Illinois. As evidenced by your poor grammar, bad spelling and general infantile demeanor, it is difficult for me to believe that you received much public or private education anywhere.

You, on the other hand, aren't very perceptive, Colonel Morgan. Your "englsih" and logic leave much to be desired.

Well, I'm #8 on this year's list for SCPO (E-8) but I'm considering submitted my package for Warrant Officer. Never could go full officer due to the age cutoff.

>in part is becuase in your eagerness to flame me you did not bother
>reading the exchange Jeff was the one claiming that motivation was

It certainly is. Motivation will take you as far as you can possibly go, but it certainly can't overcome such barriers as age cutoffs. Motivation also can't create more openings for a particular position than already exist. If X motivated people are competing for Y openings of a position, and Y < X, then some of those motivated folks won't win. Because they're motivated, those that lose will try again next time.

Now, last I checked, there were no age barriers for advancing in amateur radio, nor were there any limitations on the number licensees in any particular class. So, those that are motivated will advance; those that aren't, won't.

I feel as if I'm teaching a first-grader common-sense facts.

>therefore your statement is more proper at proving that Jeff is not a >memebr of the armed forces

You apparently don't realize that the USCG is the only armed force outside of the DoD. This is done on purpose, for it allows us to also enforce federal law within the US borders, something the other four services are prohibited from due to the Posse Comitatus Act of 1878.

This calls for Title 14, Part 1, Chapter 1, Section 1, of the US Code:

Establishment of Coast Guard

The Coast Guard as established January 28, 1915, shall be a military service and a branch of the armed forces of the United States at all times. The Coast Guard shall be a service in the Department of Homeland Security, except when operating as a service in the Navy.

HLS, not DoD.

>(UNSNIP)...or for that matter why was >your motivation only enough to be a lecurer, not a full professor or >even dept head of Mathematics??

It's a long story, but suffice it to say that I used up my seven years in the PhD program (that's all that's alloted), so ended up with just the masters degree. Motivation can't overcome seven-year time limits. That's all I'll say about that, for I know you're baiting me, and I know better than to bite.

Everytime you post that it reminds me of the following newpaper article:

Internet message results in libel award
(AP)
Richmond, Va -- A former doctor at Emory University School of Medicine has won what his lawyers say is the first libel verdict based on an anonymouse Internet message.
A U.S. District Court judge last week awarded $675,000 to Dr. Sam D. Graham Jr., who resigned as chairman of the school's urology department in July 1998.
(snip)
The judge called the Internet messages "about as despicable as any course of conduct that one could engage in."
Graham's attorneys, D. Alan Rudlin and J. Burke McCormick, said they believe the judgement is the first libel verdict based on an anonymous Internet message.

You should be able to pull up the full article from the names mentioned above.

Saw this in an alternate time-space continuum. Strange how parallel universes are so similar. It has absolutely nothing to do with Amateur Radio, only that of the subject of communications.

==========

The Flap Flap of Signal Flags

by Cole Evans Squier

I saw a piece in Signal magazine awhile ago. It said that the United States Army Signal Corps had ceased to teach Morse Code. With all the super techno-whizbang communication equipment around these days such as "radio", I guess 'lefts' and 'rights' of signal flags are looked upon as primitive communication.

That's a damn pity because there is no more comforting sound than the rythmic flap, flap, flap of signal flags in a light breeze. Watching a competent signalman operate signal flags, to me beats watching a concert violinist or an Olympic medal-winning ice skater.

There was something about nighttime signaling, using torches instead of the flags, across the open expanse of the battlefield. The signalman and the gentle whoosh whoosh of lit signal torches.

"Sir, that's the 21st Brigade of the First Cav!"

"Very well. Ask them if LT Bill Lumberstream is there. I went to the Point with Big Bill."

"Yes sir."

"Yessir, he's there. Major now."

"Very well. Tell them to relay my compliments and tell Big Bill that 'Tall Tales' has the commo officer duty over here."

Little messages exchanged in darkness. Communication between members of America's great land warrior family. Those fingers of light always made me feel that I was a part of a big organization.

Things that were so much a part of our life, have gone out of existence in the ensuing years. They tell me that mounted cavalrymen are the lost ratings of yesteryear. I know nothing lasts forever and that there's nothing worse to subsequent generations than an old bastard reliving cherished memories of the past. But with the Army looking to boost its recruiting, it might be beneficial to revisit some of the things that were so meaningful to the grunts who manned our lines long ago.

Tradition is a valuable asset. Not that to honor tradition, you have to set aside technological advance. Not at all. But many of the 'soldier skills' are being discounted. Consider this. In battle, when you lose power and your computer-generated mo-jo is lost, or your batteries run out. Or the enemy RDFs on that new-fangled radio and pin-points your position. Will there be anyone who can find their position with just a map and compass?

What happens if the bad guys find a way to negate satellite positioning? What happens to the poor bastards bobbing around in an assault boat with a signalman and an operating flashlight?

How can you call a man an American soldier who can't tie a granny knot or read flags? At some point, you stop being a grunt and become a technician. That's a sad fact, but a fact, nonetheless.

The Army used to sell action adventure. It used to fill its recruiting offices with posters of smiling soldiers visiting exotic countries. Extolling the qualities found in an elite service like Special Forces. Now you see posters promising monetary incentives, education benefits and pledges of high-level technical training. It is not an 'Army of One' Army, anymore. It's a 'What's in it for me?' Army. You can see the effect on the armored forces. Interchangeable crews. That's like a shared bride.

Somebody needs to reinitiate the concept of 'a lad and his track'. I see armor crews with the names of a dozen tracks stenciled on their flak vests. How can a lad develop love and loyalty to twelve tanks? Simple answer. He can't.

We need to figure out some way of reconnecting men with the land. We need to develop, to reestablish the relationship between soldiers and their units.

But, as I said earlier, there's nothing worse than a nostalgic old coot who's out of step with the march of time. An old sonuvabitch whose era has come and gone.

But you can't fault a man who loved his service. The men. His mess hall. His unit. An old bastard who can still hear the gentle flap, flap, flap of the signal flags on a hilltop.

I can't believe what some RRAP hams are into!

The ultra-perverted FURRY FETISH !

Iffen you ain't heard about the furry fetish and wanna see the incredible PHOTOS, then by all means lookie over here: http://orifice.net/search/furry (..not for kids, OK for lids)

and here too for all the details: http://crushyiffdestroy.com/b2/index.php

here too: http://www.crushyiffdestroy.com/showr/vanityfair

Ugggh!! Fat middle-aged balding white men who are into having their friends dress up in anatomically correct full-body costumes with holes cut in just the right places (!!) for what they call....."yiffing"!

How shocking! Only cloistered fatassed ham radio operator perverts could have come up with this.....
Forget the LAMBDA a.r.c. stuff, this is FAR WORSE folks.

BARFFFFFFFF!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

ps: We are also VERY HAPPY to announce that 14.275
in the daytime on the weekends is back to it's old revolting self again! Yes folks, all of the old clowns are back on 14.275 on the weekends mixing-it-up LIVE and ON THE AIR again just like they used to do in the good ole days with music, foul language, tape playing and more. Hail Hail the gang's all here!
Toon in any weekend for some good ole-tyme "pre-Hollingsworth" radio fun! (It's almost as good as the old Mike and Judy Show!!!!)

Damn, you, bertie and gopher face n8wgm can have a party at the Shipwreck, maybe you can invite Sgt. Randy YMCA of the Glen Dale PD, he's a big queer. He probably enjoys having Chief pig vomit give him the reach around.

Actually NO. Those who PASSED the tests got theirs.

The TESTS have been largely modified by amateur politics to reflect what a small, special-interest group desired.

That should be glaringly obvious over the years, resulting in the Byzantine-structured SIX license classes that existed
prior to Restructuring of 2000.

Tsk, tsk, that's so PRIME that there really aren't "any other factors." :-)

Nonsense, Jimmie, pure unadulterated NONSENSE. [try not to get in over your head (again) into areas where you have NO expertise]

ART is in the DOING. Artists "learn" media by doing. It's the ONLY way it can be done. All will tell you so. Those who aren't gifted with the art aptitude APPEAR to "not study" (to non-art people) only because you can't get into their head, feel their mind-hand-media coordination, feel their inspiration when their inner mind guides their hands through their eyes.

"Studying" art consists of a lot of make-work "book learning" of artists from contemporary to the Old Masters. One absorbs a lot of facts but NO real relationship to DOING art.

More NONSENSE, Jimmie. You can't make a 140 pound runner into a football linebacker (college or pro level) through "study"
OR "training, practice, competition." For one thing, the "training" will result in injuries (when the real linebackers smoosh then into the ground) so that they can't "practice."
There won't be any "competition" because they can't survive
the "training."

On the same token, it is highly unlikely that the linebacker physical type will ever develop into the longer-distance runner due to the body's structure. NO "training, practice, competition" will result since their bodies aren't capable.

That's just two examples of WHY there are so many kinds of physical sport.

>Without the ability or aptitude, a person will not become a world-class

True enough. You are finally coming around to it...

>But a person with very little "sports ability" who trains will be >a better athlete than the person with high aptitude who does not train.

Did you watch Texas v. USC in the Rose Bowl Championship game?

The Longhorns were NOT using long-distance runner physique types for their defensive team.

TRAINING and PRACTICE, Jimmie, NOT "study."

You are disagreeing with yourself.

Tsk, tsk, tsk. Human languages are "learnable" because of the inate ability of humans to relate sounds...tone, pitch, duration, etc., to concepts, emotions, intellectual information, etc.

"Morse code" is NOT A LANGUAGE per se.

International Morse Code is a REPRESENTATION of the English language alphanumeric characters (plus most punctuation).

Feel free to study all the languages of the world, be a linguistic scientist. You will NOT find any human languages which are based on monotonic bursts of sound.

>I suspect that Jeff's reasons are similar to your reasons for >holding fast to old requirements in local real estate zoning and

Total Troll Bullshit, Jimmie.

Local Zoning regulations have NOTHING to do with the subject in this thread.

You've MANUFACTURED an issue which is NOT an amateur radio policy issue.

>> Amateur radio is NOT a job, NOT a craft, guild, or union.
>
>That's true.
>
>Does that mean there should be no requirements for it?
>
>No standards? No accomplishments or skills?
>
>You seem to think so.

More Trolling BS, Jimmie. I stated that amateur radio is NOT a job, NOT a craft, guild, or union. It is NOT professional by definition of the FCC...that is why the Commission defines it as AMATEUR radio.

Since amateur radio is NOT a profession, there is NO need to ACT or PRETEND or falsly-raise-to-professional-standards ANYTHING that is done in amateur radio. It is basically a HOBBY and the "accomplishments" and "skills" by individual hobbyists are venerated in the media, NOT by the Commission.

The FCC REQUIRES certain technical regulations to be met (or be considered illegal if not within those regulations). Doing so requires skills, accomplishments in making sure those REGULATIONS are met...or knowing enough to have others, WITH skills and accomplishments in metrology, to find out if their equipment is within regulations.

>We have seen what happens to a radio service like that. It's called cb.

Citizens Band Radio Service has evolved since its "Class D" beginning in 1958, 48 years ago. If there is a "fault" in CB, that is due mainly to lack of enforcement in the face of unexpected growth of users through low-cost offshore imports.

There was NEVER any "regulation" stating that CB users must always act like hams, use the same jargon, use the same procedures, etc., etc.

Radio amateurs do NOT use the same jargon, procedures, etc., as the Aircraft Radio Service.

Radio amateurs do NOT use the same jargon, procedures, etc., as the Maritime Radio Service.

Radio amateurs do NOT use the same jargon, procedures, etc., as Private Land Mobile Radio Service.

Radio amateurs do NOT use the same jargon, procedures, etc., as any of the Military radio services. [roger that!]

Radio amateurs do NOT use the same jargon, procedures, etc., as the Radio Control Radio Service (Part 95).

Why don't hams emulate one of the other radio services? And why do so many demand that CB users act, do, talk like they?

Remember that the appelation "ham" derived long ago (about 1900) as an unkind word applied by professional radio operators towards the amateurs. Amateurs seem to have LIKED it and, ever since, have pretended to be "as good" and sometimes (in a fit of grandeur) "better than" (!) the pros.

Ever since the Test-less CB Class D radio service was created 48 years ago, hams have derided it, called it names, denigrated anyone who used that "new" allocation for Citizens...for NOT being just like the hams. Hams didn't like the NEW jargon that evolved (by millions more users than existed in the ham service) or the use of "10" codes (a la some state police on radio) or much of anything else about it. Now YOU are joining in the fray. Why? What has CB done to you? Why do you hate it?

You want to POLICE the CB channels? Feel free. No license required, purchase a whole set for under $100 at Wal-Mart. Get on the air on CB, "show them how it is done." Get MOTIVATED! Be da Man!

Jim, Len, Dee, et al;

Given the current sad state of affairs with regard to the proliferation of postings and new subject lines which show an absolute total and complete disregard for the intended purpose of this newsgroup (RRAP), I am signing off here...at least for the forseeable future...
or until the postings of a handful of subject matter

Cheers to all who discuss, debate, argue or contribute

No cheers for the handful of unkempt, societal misfits

indeed steve why you can't allow discussion to contiue on any subject here rmotely conected with radio is amaazing more amazing is that you expect your victums to tolerate attack like mark morgan caught on tape molesting an 8yo in silence is even more amzing

a tactic you repated todayin claiming that sexual orientaion other than one one you aprove is mental illness

when we have had that discussion beofre and shown you wrong

yes I have choosen finaly to fight fire with fire but een then I don't lie about you or anyone else

you could try to stop your from enaging your contiued character assignation but then it seems you'd have nothing to say really and yet despite your claims they are still biding their time about me

I am according to you a danger to myself and others and yet the state has this "evidence" and does nothing for months

no Stevei they have evidence form you that their are pople that don't like me

I can certainly live with that

Hello, Bill

I agree and am also going to take a "vacation" from rrap.

I was in touch with Hans and he gave me an idea. I suspect we shall both be buried at sea (I'm thinking at Challenger depth in the Marianas Trench) and invite most of the folks in rrap to dance on our graves :))

874. EMAIL CAMPAIGN to put a stop to Mark Morgan

Newsgroup: rec.radio.amateur.policy

It is a sad thing to watch, but it is also time that Mark be stopped. The first order of business is to write complaints to his satellite provider, and several of us have already done that.

From the Direcway web page: "If you suspect that the DIRECWAY service is being abused through illegal means or in violation of Internet ethics, please let us know at abuse@direcway.com. For a detailed look at what is acceptable use of the DIRECWAY service, please read our Subscriber Agreement."

In particular, readers should note the DIRECWAY provision which says in part that a customer is not allowed "... g) to bombard individuals or newsgroups with uninvited communications, data or information, or other similar activities, including but not limited to "spamming", "flaming" or denial or distributed denial of service attacks; "

Mark is in clear violation of the preceding provision, and if enough of us write to abuse@direcway.com, we should be able to put a stop to his nonsense. Once DIRECWAY receives enough email, they should be convinced that Mark is annoying too many people to be ignored.

After that, rrap may finally return to normal.

(Sorry, Mark, but you've been asking for it.)

sure does

you said" lying is the same as kiddy porn" and you have said the kiddy porn is child abusethere lying is child abuse and since have lied about tsaying this you have lied and you have threfore beomce the same as child abuse of course you could just tell the truth and admit the you lied when you said the "lying is the same as kiddy porn" but that would make you a lyiar too

Unlike Roger who has those buckteeth as evidenced by his fruity picture. The only thing that would make Roger look better is orange because he looks like either an escaped convict or a patient from the mental ward.Roger the white trash hillbilly, no job, no money, no talent, and just a total screw up.

Wow, 29 years bootlegging on ham and no FCC check? I think that's a new record!! There's been a couple of guys on a Militia/Patriot net every night on 3.8-0 mHz LSB for over 3 years now with phony callsigns who still ain't got caught or even raised a red flag with either FCC or OHS.
but if you went along for that long and got off with a slap on da wrist, then woo-woo on you. (bet you were a good customer at the ham store also eh? Did the buffoons sel you a big amplifier too with no license check? prolly did..)

How could you possibly know???

I've never heard of you, and this is the only post that you've ever made to RRAP.

Mark is merely giving back to Steve what Steve has given to Mark and the rest of this group. Except for the fact that Mark can out-Asshole Steve, and Steve hates it.

Don't like it? All you have to do is apologize to Mark and promise to restrain yourself from making remarks about Mark's or anyone else's sexuality. Those kind of remarks have nothing to do with RRAP.

Think of it this way Bill........

It does keep all of the screwballs and lids here on Usenet and not back on 14.313, 14,275 and all up and down the 75 Meter band at night. (that is a good thing!)

The nice thing about a civil lawsuit is that the huge fine can be attached to defendant's wages; for every dollar earned, so many cents go to paying the plaintiff the awarded amount. Also, if property is sold, the funds are seized and again given to the plaintiff.

The "power" is called the "truth". Calling your actions censorship was NOT a lie.

You attempted to interfere in another person's expression of thought.

That's censorship.

Nice try at linking, Markie.

But using YOUR "rationalization" we could say that Mark Morgan is a lying, gay idiot, he has a "9th" area call sign, therefore all 9th-area ops are lying gay idiots.

Of course that's not true, but that's YOUR rationalization.

Guess this means you've got to start using your real name in your posts, eh, Brain?

In any case, the article mentioned the likelyhood of not being able to enforce this, however it will be interesting to see if any case law is developed from it in the near future.

It also suggested the likelyhood that anonymous tipsters might be detered by this law. I doubt it. However I also believe that if you have a complaint to make, there's more strength in standing up for what you believe in and putting your name on it rather than slinging mud from behind anonymity.

If you don't have the strength of conviction of your own words to put your name behind them, why make them?

Of course he can.

I'm not an ###hole. Just ask me.

Then we'd have to demand apologies from you and Lennie for bodacious lies and deceitful behaviour that you've perpetuated, and where would THAT get anyone?

As for the sex and religion comments, you've GOT to be kidding us, Brainnie.

That started way before Markie came along and will continue way after he get's his just desserts.

And here we have Brian P Burke, N0IMD, promulgating a lie of his very own making!

Not that it's a new "habit" for him...

Nope. He got that from Lennie and you...don't be shy! Take credit where credit is due, Brain!

But if I "apologize" to Mark for anything, I'd be lying. There's nothing to apologize to him for.

"seculation"...?!?!

And there's nothing "logical" about accusing me of making posts to which the headers indicate otherwise.

THAT'S stupid.

I only "miss" that which is illogical, stupid, poorly worded or illegible.

Which makes up most of your stuff, come to think of it....

No...it's not. It's a 'nickname'.

A signature is his NAME. The one mumsy and pops gave him.

Unless his parents were really insensitive, I bet his real name is NOT "hot-ham-and-cheese"

> you should look the arist curently known as prince but once had to be

That was a publicity ploy.

The courts still require his given name on all documents.

What's "slader"...???

TOS me for accusing a drunk of being intoxicated, Mark...?!?!

And by the way...Although I generally have my AOL server open when I post here, it's not necessary. So go ahead. Dropping (or getting dropped from) AOL wouldn't even be a speedbump.

It still says "sgattack sig file" .

WTF is an "sgattack"...?!?!

Somewhere along the way a lawyer was responsible or had some part in it. I have no doubt that your continued imposition on society is in much due to the workings of a lawyer.

I don't create anything, Markie.

I respond to your posts either with "k4yz@aol.com" or "stevenrobeson@yahoo.com"

In either case, I always "sign" the bottom of the post with
"Steve, K4YZ"

I don't create bogus "posters", nor do I ask for or encourage them.

Tough for you to accept, I know. but so far, with the exception of Frankie (a twice-disgraced court martialed ex-serviceman) and Brain, (himself archived as being decitful, dishonest and untrustworthy), there's really NO support for you or your campaign in this forum.

Indeed, even when you SPECIFICALLY addressed your "colleagues" of your intent to try and sanction my Nursing license and your request for them to participate, they each told you "NO", in no uncertain terms.

Some friends.

And those few words of "support" for me here by both known and unknown sources has been unsolicited, either in public or private.

Seven years old, Markie, and you still can't make this "stick" for anything.

No solicitation.

No offer to "meet".

No discussion of personal interests, traits, conduct, etc etc etc.

Just Markie grabbing at straws!

Guess you just made that "sentence" up and cut-and-paste it since you can't come up with anything original.

by now you should have seen a number (15-20)of reposts given as examples of the actions of steve that meet the "definaifation" steve claim to be that of censorhsip

is that censorship ? If itthen Steve is the very model of consorhsip

but it is not censorship ist is free speech something that steve likes to try to deny to everybody but himself

trying to deny free speech to others is censorship and imoral but that is stev all over

Still stretching, Markie.

The subject line addressed Toiddie...And that's what the contect was about.

No censorship.

If you find an answer to that would you be so kind as to share it with us?

On behalf of those of us who still hold an affinity for the "old

No, Toiddie. None of the "fake email" were sent by me.

Yes, Toiddie, each of the ISP's has a "contract" that pretty much looks like the other guys...And as such if you don't like what you see,
DON'T sign it!

The only ammoral ones here, Markie, is you and Toiddie. I don't get into the Wiseman crowd.

As for "censorship", ALL of my posts addressed to "More Markie

But good luck trying to use that excuse.

Obviously you continue to thnk that there was some impropriety in my comments simply because they were in a "personals" NG.

However I've asked yo SEVERAL times to demonstrate where such impropriety exists, and yet you can't / refuse to do so.

Jeff, I really doubt anything will be done about it, I've been complaining about a moron posting my Copyrighted material on here and on other newsgroups and nothing has been done about it yet.

First of all, I don't choose to partake in kiddy porn, Toiddie.
There are enough danged fine women well over the age-of-consent to enjoy. Too bad there are punks like you who won't let kids be kids.

Secondly, YOU have NO BUSINESS making any accusations about anyone allegedly breaking federal laws. YOUR track record of federal violations is well documented, Toiddie.

by now you should have seen a number (15-20)of reposts given as examples of the actions of steve that meet the "definaifation" steve
claim to be that of censorhsip

is that censorship ? If itthen Steve is the very model of consorhsip

but it is not censorship ist is free speech something that steve likes
to try to deny to everybody but himself

trying to deny free speech to others is censorship and imoral but that

by now you should have seen a number (15-20)of reposts given as examples of the actions of steve that meet the "definaifation" steve
claim to be that of censorhsip

is that censorship ? If itthen Steve is the very model of consorhsip

but it is not censorship ist is free speech something that steve likes
to try to deny to everybody but himself

trying to deny free speech to others is censorship and imoral but that is stev all over

Why should I?

Are you going to go on another spam binge everytime someone mentions them..?!?!

I doubt it.

Are YOU willing to "promise" that YOU will NEVER discuss sex or religion in the NG...EVER...?!?!

Oh?

WHICH "arrl manual"...?!?!?

Volume? Edition? Page? Author?

Any FACTS to back this up?

Any place in ANY "arrl manual" that specifies a law that says an QSL card can NOT be sued for ANY OTHER PURPOSE...?!?!

BTW...KC8VKZ's QRZ listing showed almost 21,000 hits when I looked. Seems a lot of other Amateurs are gearing up to send him a QSL card, Markie.

You figure all 21,000 of them (20,998 if you don't count you and I) don't know about this alleged reference of yours?

No one is hiding, Markie.

Again, the SCREEN NAMES are all mine and are either my callsign or my given name.

The "nick", properly the "nickname" is exactly the same for all accounts, and that is "K4YZ", which is my FCC-issued Amateur Radio station license.

Uh huh. They are. But YOU stated that this alleged "rule" was in the "arrl manual". So in WHICH "arrl manual" does this proclaimation exist?

> > Any place in ANY "arrl manual" that specifies a law that says an

So then your "argument" here is simply to impede those who might be so predisposed as to send this guy (An NCT, by the way...) a greeting and offer of best wishes.

"greating" cards? Cards that are better than others?

And Markie, ONLY YOU would make such an outlandish statement about a fellow NCT'er who's laid up in a hospital bed.

Obviously you do.

And maybe they are going to send the guy a QSL card with some words of encouragement....And according to "QRZ.COM", no small number of them are sending funds. I get paid Friaday and will follow suit.

YES I DID, AND THE PICTURE IS NOT THERE BECAUSE I SENT THEM A DMCA

THE OTHER WEBSITES IT'S APPEARED ON. BECAUSE IT WAS POSTED THERE WITHOUT MY PERMISSION, THE PICTURE IS PROTECTED UNDER COPYRIGHT LAW AND I OWN THE

The "point" is not mine to make. It's yours. You keep stating that I am "hiding". I am not.

So we've demonstrated that (1) You don't know the proper terminology for the various components of a USENET post and (2) Your allegations of my "hiding" are false.

Of course you are doing things wrong, Markie. Stealing my wife's ARRL remailer and creating screen names that defiled two dead people, one a child, was pretty sick.

No, I did not lie. Note the "quotes".

YOU are the one suggesting that a QSL card cannot be used for any purpose other than confirming QSO's.

YOU are the one who stated that this is in an unnamed "arrl manual".

Can you identify this alleged manual or not?

What is proper use of a QSL (or improper?) Neither ARRL, FCC, K4YZ, or KB9RQZ have any authority to tell anyone how to use a QSL, so I guess you're just blowing smoke about a topic you have no understanding of.

As usual.

Nope.

Every word true.

"K4YZ" is the "nickname". You're using Google so you've had to use the same "create" screens. Ergo you should know better than to get caught in such a lie.

Each of the three screen names I use either identify me by given name or Amateur Radio callsign...No nicknames, abberations of given names or pretend Dungeons and Dragons names.

Are you N8DOS? Of course not. Do you have his power-of-attorney?

Ahhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhh!

I see!

Mark Morgan considers post-bowel evacuation hygiene as a proper use of a QSL card, but sending a note of good wishes for a fellow Amateur is "improper"...!

And a fellow non-code Technician at that!

> flush

No, Markie, YOU are the one "flushed" here.

Caught lying, and lying about something as benign as sending good wishes to a fellow Amatuer that survived Hell-On-Earth.

Typical Mark Morgan.

Of course they are decitful.

"KONSTANS" is not your name, given or otherwise.

W5AMY is not your callsign.

Taelor Robeson was not your daughter.

Your only "honest" screen names are the ones you have "KB9RQZ" in.

And even MORE censorship...or is it just ducking the embarrassing

Markie, if you're THAT anxious to part with your money, why don't you save BOTH of us the trouble and just send me a check for $15,000?
We'll call it even and you get to save whatever you would have spent on a lawyer.

Of course you did. You said it could be used for wiping your ###
with.

And you SPECIFICALLY said that using a QSL card to send a greeting of good wishes was an IMPROPER use.

You even went as far as suggesting that the ARRL somehow suggested this was improper. It's not true, of course. I've pushed you all day long to validate your source and the best you can do is "arrl manual".

Ya ran your mouth off and boxed yourself in.

you asked I would refrain from sexual reference at all
I said not I would and generaly do refrain from injecting sex into a thread I will conittinue to do so

I have asked or demanded if you prefer the pharse that you stop making alageation (true or not) about peoples sexuall orientation indeed Iam
not bother the off color joke but saying some is gay or that they or their family has AIDs is over the top

I also demand you stop making statements beyond the scope of LPN license yes this demand only applies to you but you choose to get that license and with it the extra power and responsiblity

like wise I have asked that you stop your mocking of religion and stop lyying about what people religion entials

I do not do either

I do inquire as why some folks profess a religion but don't seem to follow its teaching, esp after claiming moral was related to RRAP if someone beleive s in religion X but does not follow that religions teachings it is a valid point to bring up. you OTOH presume to lie and state what gods I beleive exist, in addtion to being a lie (you clearly don't and this is not the NG to educate you on my religion) ishas no bearing on the topicradio particularly Ham radio and that rules athat do and/or should should govern it or even relate to the character of

At least your RRAP persona is. Maybe you're a different person when you attend CAP meetings, and yet another person when you show up for work. But I doubt it. I think your rapid changes in MARS affiliation, jumping from the Tennessee Militia to the Air Force's CAP program is indicative of someone with problems.

You're lucky that you chose health care as a career. The industry is so hard up for warm bodies that you'd have to kill someone for them to fire you. Or maybe not?

Hello, Steve

Please take care in your replies. I already blocked the guy and now I have to read the stupid message you replied to :))

The group is quite a bit cleaner after I set some filters. Might I suggest you try it? That said, I'm still looking for good discussion on amateur policy.

you may only read this when steve flames me in response but he goes that does not do what steve wants steve wants to bar anyone that disagrees with from even posting, that has been clear to ost folks that have read the NG oiover the years

He wants tobar Len, myself, bain todd and now frank from posting and being read by anybody

that is the fact

Nope.

You're putting words into my mouth.

I said I'd take action. I have. Whatever get's filed get's filed when he thinks it's ready to go...Not a minute before. And doesn't cost ME a thing until it does.

Markie...your just demonstrated your BIGGEST problem here...Lack

Sure you can. You do a fine job trying. I give you extra points for being being a bit less profane and being literate, but you are your own star in your own right.

No you don't.

My changes in MARS affiliations were not "rapid", Brain. I was in NMC MARS in the mid-70's to early 80's, and AFMARS from mid-80's to 1990. I was a member of ARMARS only briefly in 1999 while affiliated with the TDF/TSG.

And there was hardly any "jumping" from the TSG back to CAP.
There was no CAP program within easy driving distance when I joined TSG. That changed. My CAP affiliation, with gaps during some of my USMC career and after Bugaboo passed, goes back to 1969.

Again, you come up wanting for facts.

> You're lucky that you chose health care as a career. The industry is Quite the contrary.

The state of litigation in healthcare predisposes companies to firing people at will.

Again, Brain comes up short on facts. (As if THAT was new......)

Two thirds of what flops into this pool have anything to do with radio.

So...tell me why you think I should be unilaterally subjected to any restrictions on topics or content, Brain...And make it believable subjected to restrictions that other persons are not subjected to, Brain?

I've not made any statements "beyond the scope of LPN" no matter how YOU define or interpret the regulations, Markie.

I don't mock your "religion" Markie. You're free to cut off all the chicken heads and draw all the pentagrams you care to, or whatever it is you prefer to do. Have fun.

Yes, you do.

You've initiated threads SPECIFICALLY questioning Dave Heil's beliefs and attemtping to discredit him based upon "religious" comments that YOU initiated.

I've read the Bible pretty thoroughly, Markie. I've even studied the Koran a bit. I do not find a single word in either about RRAP...Although I guess I could do a "fundamentalist" trick and stretch the "eye-for-an-eye" "teachings" that each profess and apply it here.

No Markie, YOU are the archived, professed and bragged-on liar here.

Markie, unless you care to dismiss those parts of American law that we all cherish that pertain to "freedom of speech", then there's not a whole lot you or anyone else can do about stopping ANYone from commenting on any subject at anytime.

There are countless threads in this NG that discuss anything BUT radio. Start your survey by reading over Lennie's OT posts. They're classic.

thing ncluding wiping your ###"

There was no qualifying "improper" adjective there, Markie.

See what your English comprehension issues get you...?!?!

> >with.

No, it's not.

It's an Amateur Radio tradition.

But since you insist it is improper, >>I<< insist that YOU provide the reference to some rule, law, regulation, standard or other verifying reference that substantiates your claim.

The TRUTH, Markie, is that sending QSL cards to sick or infirmed
Amateurs is century long tradition.

> > Ya ran your mouth off and boxed yourself in.

No, I am not.

It's right ehre for anyone to see.

You think it's improper to send that poor fellow in West Virginia a QSL card with a brief note of support and well-wishing.

On the otherhand is 100 years of tradition.

Send a greeting card if you so choose. That's fine. No one said you can ONLY send a QSL card.

The disloyalty comes from you spending the whole day arguing about something that clearly demonstrates a strong degree of callousness and lack of knowledge of Amateur traditions.

> you are nuts we all (except you) know that

YOU are the one with facing problems, Markie.

You keep insisting that you are somehow MORE entitled to things just because you're lazy and ignorant.

So far you've not said anything that bordered on "reason" or "plain sense", Markie.

I told you MONTHS AGO to not discuss anything you didn't want to,
Markie, but you just resposned with even more NG spamming.

I am not sure what that was supposed to mean since most of it was not in English.

No...That said nothing about your "persona".

Nope. YOU kept on repeating your "demand" and making even more

But you've never even met the man.

You're not a frocked member of the clergy.

You're not Christian, ergo have nothing to base your claims upon other than third-party opinion.

I haven't questioned your "faith", Markie.

want to do, even if that includes some fort of sacrifice.

Nope.

Right on the head.

You claimed there were points to bring up about one's practice of religion and their conduct in RRAP. I pointed out that RRAP is not mentioned in at least two of the world's major texts.

No, I did not.

And you had better wake your alleged legal clerk wife up and ask him about husband / wife privilege. Obviously yet another aspect of "law" that you have not understanding of.

HAS "shown up". And I say you have taken something that does not

Nope.

What you are doing is retasking as many subject lines with inappropraite profanity and then hoping you can hide your lies and deceit under the trash.

Sure you have. Absolutley stated that you do NOT drink, never have. Which in and of itself was a lie since in our first go-arounds you admitted to prefering certain beers.

Sure it is. When the "subject" is honesty and you've claimed that you DON'T drink when you quite clearly just stated that you do, it is my "busness"

I am sure it takes quite a lot to make a fat slob like you "that"
drunk.

Nothing, as long as you don't beat your "wife" when you're drunk and stay out from behind the wheel of a motor vehicle when you do.

Because you brought it up and commented on it.

I told you to not comment on issues that you don't want discussed.
That is, afterall, what you say you've been wanting.

I am not required to know wether or not you are telling the truth
Indeed I can never be certain when you lying or when you are telling the truth

were you lying when you said If I stopped using your daughters name you would not sue me?

who can be sure with you

since you claim you NEVER lie I beleive that LEGALY I may assue all your posts and promises are truthful

atl east that will be my contention ifyou do file

your lawyer will then have to contend that I should know you were lying in this post but not in that post. I have seen Judge Hood (one of the judes you may draw) in action, I don't think he will go for that, esp from an "Auslander" like yourself.

Of course you can file. I can't stop you, and will not try. But if you file aand make mye spend the reatiner then I will seek to chrage you with Fraud in making your various claims in this matter

File or not your choice, Be a man. if you can and shit or get off the pot

Btw you should send this post to yuor lawyer too

you asked I would refrain from sexual reference at all
I said not I would and generaly do refrain from injecting sex into a thread I will conittinue to do so

I have asked or demanded if you prefer the pharse that you stop making alageation (true or not) about peoples sexuall orientation indeed Iam
not bother the off color joke but saying some is gay or that they or
their family has AIDs is over the top

I also demand you stop making statements beyond the scope of LPN
license yes this demand only applies to you but you choose to get that license and with it the extra power and responsiblity

like wise I have asked that you stop your mocking of religion and stop
lyying about what people religion entials

I do not do either

I do inquire as why some folks profess a religion but don't seem to follow its teaching, esp after claiming moral was related to RRAP if someone beleive s in religion X but does not follow that religions teachings it is a valid point to bring up. you OTOH presume to lie
and state what gods I beleive exist, in addtion to being a lie (you clearly
don't and this is not the NG to educate you on my religion) ishas no bearing on the topicradio particularly Ham radio and that rules athat
do and/or should should govern it or even relate to the character of

No, I did not "top post".

I replied in order, as I always do.

But I guess you wouldn't know that since it's now apparent that you read from the bottom up.

No it's not. It's still right there.

That you choose to try and ignore it is your issue, not mine.

That was a "paraphrase" alright.

Disjointed, spelled wrong, stupid looking.

Neither.

It was sarcasm.

Since you can't use a spellchecker I guess it's too much to expect you to be able to use a dictionary.

> and how can we tell when you are telling the truth?

You may assume anything you care to, Markie.

The results are the same.

Paralegal IS a clerk. "Paralegal" is a new-age term to make "technical" staff feel better about themselves. Just like houskeepers and maids in the hosptial...They are now "enviromental services technicians"...But they are pushing the same brooms and swabbing with the same mops nonetheless.

Your wife's still not a lawyer and he probably never will be.

There's a lot of things that don't matter that you've spammed the NG over for almost two months now.

The point is you're an illiterate, selfish punk that littered the NG with profanities and trash for his own gratification.

Typical "Mark". Your obsessive-compulsive issues are really hot and heavy today.

But sorry again, Markie. Not me. Funny, but not me.

You're going to have to come to grips with the concept that there are a LOT of other people out there, Mark, who find you as equally ignorant, foolish and comical as I do.

No I didn't. Not once did I say he doesn't think that.

What I DID say is that he has no basis to make the assertion about any other setting other than RRAP. Indeed anyone who knows anything

What you need to protect yourself from Markie IS yourself!

You took advantage of a sarcastic remark.

> I took adavantage of your mistake

My "mistake", Markie, was assuming you would understand that your use of my daughter and father like that would certainly bolster my dossier on you.

No rational person would think that another person would readily render such "premsiion" to abuse a loved one.

my father and daughter.

You make it easy to do, Markie.

Your "lawyer" will do the same thing...get his retainer then tell you to get your checkbook out for even MORE writing fun.

Markie, I can live with the less than 1% of my typed words having a mispelling. I can live with it from anyone. YOU do it to the point of unintelligibility on a daily basis.

It's that lack of willingness to fix your own problems and to work to truly undertsand the language you claim to be proficient at that get's you into trouble.

I point out that you've bombed the net with close to 1,000 posts

the time frame in which they were made.

Your INSINUATION was that I have spammed the NG like you have.

You've not offered a single word of reason or sense, Markie.

Not a one.

There you are talking about "returning fire", Markie, yet when replied to in kind you make accusations of "STALKING! STALKING!"

If I "return fire", Markie, I hit what I aim at. In this case it's your assinine ideas and behaviour.

> I alone am willing to even discuss terms for peace

The "peace" will ensure soon enough one way or the other. You either stop acting like a fool before the papers get served, in which case there's no further need to proceed. Or you keep it up and the papers get served and I prevail AND make a few bucks in the process.

"fire" "war" "atack"...You really do play way too amny video games, Markie. You need to get out of the house, get a job, and do something meaningful and constructive.

That's a drop in YOUR lap, Markie. You claim that I am censoring stuff when I snip stuff that's more than 3-posts deep. But when YOU do it, the rest of us are supposed to guess what you meant.

The difference here being that you make it a habit of "commenting" on the words you "cut", whereas I do not. If I am going to comment on something, I requote it first.

I am 'ying' ing...?!?! What's that?

Misunderstanding is not a "right"...It's an error due to poor communication.

In this case, it's your failure to express yourself more effectively within the preferred language of this forum.

Now see what I mean. There's yet ANOTHER "sentence" that is meaningless because YOU put in "...and stop adding that aren't there..." Completely meaningless and it lost you the opprotunity to be accurately understood.

> or do you see more words than i type it looks like it

And there again. Was that a question AND a statement? Sure looks like it. No punctuation and rotten grammar.

I can't "distor" yor "tatements" any worse than you already do.

No I don't.

It's apparent from your "writing".

And if it's not alcohol, it's pills, but one way or the othr you're intoxicated when yo try to "write". You look foolish.

No, I am not. The body metabolizes alcohol at a steady rate based upon several factors, the principal ones being age, bosy weight and tolerance to alcohol.

Nope. Over 90 percent of most domestic violence acts occur when the offender is intoxicated. Most of the battered persons report that the offender is normally "a nice person" when sober.

It's not an accusation. It's an observation.

No one needs to make "charges", Markie.

Toiddie's admitted to it in this forum. Even posted pictures of his Team HI-Max ultralight and described it's modifications in this forum.

No formal "charge" has to be made, Markie. The FACTS are that Toiddie's been stupid enough to discuss his numerous violations of various federal laws in an open, archived forum.

That's lke walking into a bank with a mask on, then posing for the security camera, taking your maks off and waving "Hi Mom!"

> all we have is you trying to try someone without eveidence or even a > crime in USENET

No...what we have is the perpetrator describing his activities in an open, archived forum.

That's all it takes. Of course Toiddie can beat the ultralight rap if he finishes his alleged efforts to get a Sport Pilot's license and then re-registers his Team-HIMAX as a sport aircraft, rather than as an ultralight. But I don't think he's that smart.

Considering more than one RRCB "discussion" has wound up in RRAP

First of all, I've not made any statements "beyond the scope" of my license.

Secondly, only the Tennessee State Board of Nursing or the Attorney General of Tennessee can make that demand, and only then after serving me with a court order to do so stipulating why and setting a hearing date.

That you don't like what you hear is Tango Sierra. That I am better educated, skilled and experienced than the average Nursing Home LPN is double Tango Sierra.

They didn't move on K1MAN the first time he got flagged either.
Nor Jack Gerritsen or that Burton idiot. But they did. And it's cost all three of them thousands of dollars in fines and, for two of them, jail time.

> I HAVE NOT BEEN EVER SENT A WARNING LETTER OR A NAL

"...A AMATEUR OFFICER..."

Great grammar.

Doesn't matter. One of these days you WILL get that NAL or NOV, Toiddie, and when it appears on the ARRL website you WILL know that I am laughing my bootie off at you!

Like I said...Not today...nor maybe even tomorrow...but it will happen. Then we'll see if that extra 5 gallons of gas was worth the fine and grounding order.

Nope.

Meaning that if you have any ####ing questions you need to go to a NG about ####ing. That's where you can get your ####ing questions answered.

Now the illiterate moron is a mental health provider.

I guess when you have been >>IN<< the system so long, you being to feel like you are PART of the system.

Sorry. Doesn't work that way.

you asked I would refrain from sexual reference at all
I said not I would and generaly do refrain from injecting sex into a thread I will conittinue to do so

I have asked or demanded if you prefer the pharse that you stop making alageation (true or not) about peoples sexuall orientation indeed Iam
not bother the off color joke but saying some is gay or that they or
their family has AIDs is over the top

I also demand you stop making statements beyond the scope of LPN
license yes this demand only applies to you but you choose to get that license and with it the extra power and responsiblity

like wise I have asked that you stop your mocking of religion and stop
lyying about what people religion entials

I do not do either

I do inquire as why some folks profess a religion but don't seem to follow its teaching, esp after claiming moral was related to RRAP if someone beleive s in religion X but does not follow that religions teachings it is a valid point to bring up. you OTOH presume to lie
and state what gods I beleive exist, in addtion to being a lie (you clearly
don't and this is not the NG to educate you on my religion) ishas no bearing on the topicradio particularly Ham radio and that rules athat do and/or should should govern it or even relate to the character of the target

You don't get it, Jim..... Steve is the common denominator in all this crap. He was barely rational -before- his bogus lawsuit threat, but since that tactic failed he's been frothing like an autistic ferret. He's not going to stop just because you ask him to (although he might let up for a short while to try and prove me wrong, but the reprieve won't last long because he doesn't have any self-control). So just kick back, crack open a cold one, and enjoy the show before he strokes out.

Before the Board of Licensure for Professional Engineers
State of Maine

In the matter of:

Brian L. Crow, K3VR, Complainant # E05 003

vs.

Glenn A. Baxter, P.E., K1MAN, Respondent

Registered Professional Engineer, By Examination, in Illinois

and

Registered Professional Engineer, by Reciprocity, in Maine

Amateur Radio Call Sign K1MAN

MOTION TO DISMISS

or

REQUEST TO TABLE

or

REQUEST FOR HEARING

and

REQUEST FOR PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS UNDER FREEDOM OF INFORMATION ACT

Respondent, Glenn A. Baxter, P.E., K1MAN, hereby comes through this pleading and makes this sworn affidavit of his own personal knowledge.

INTRODUCTION

Complainant, Brian L. Crow, has filed a written "Complaint" with the Maine Board of Licensure for Professional Engineers against the Respondent, and following board procedures, its Complaince Officer will present the findings of his "investigation," if any, to the Board at its regular public meeting on January 19, 2006 at 9 A.M. Mr. Crow represented to Respondent that he (Crow) has also filed an identical "Complaint" with the Illinois Division of Professional Regulation.

Mr. Crow has also petitioned all State of Maine Representatives and Senators to withdraw their official recognition of Respondent dated 13 March 1991 as well as petitioning Vermont Academy to withdraw Respondent being honored as a Distinguished Alumnus of the Academy on 1 October 1993. Further, Mr. Crow published an "editorial" in a local Maine Newspaper calling for withdrawing the Maine Legislature's recognition of the Respondent and falsely representing that he (Crow) was writing as a resident of Manchester, Maine. "Manchester Newsletter" is the name of an anonymous and scurrilous newsletter about the Respondent and is referred to below with regard to retired CBS newsman, Walter Cronkite, KB2GSB.

The Maine Legislature voted as follows on 13 March 1991:

"Be it known to all that We, the Members of the Senate and House of Representatives join in recognizing Glenn Baxter, of Belgrade Lakes who, as a coordinator and ham radio operator for the International Amateur Radio Network and International Amateur Radio Network Peace Corps, has served humankind through his noble efforts to facilitate international communication for the disaster stricken areas of the world;

And be it ordered that this official expression of sentiment be sent forthwith on behalf of the Legislature and the people of the State of Maine."

Mr. Crow has also filed "Complaints" with the Maine Attorney General, the SEC, the FBI, the Federal Trade Commission, the FCC, etc., etc., ad infinitum.

FACTS

Complainant seeks to revoke the Professional Engineering licenses of Respondent which could naturally lead to either non renewal or revocation of Respondent's commercial and amateur radio FCC licenses where rather vague issues of "character" might play a deciding role in any such FCC action. Complainant offers to the Maine Board of Licensure for Professional Engineers evidence of an "FCC Notice of Apparent Liability" against Complainant, a Petition to Deny Renewal of Respondent's FCC amateur radio license (by Keith Lamonica, an attorney admitted to practice before the FCC), and a letter urging the FCC to not renew Respondent's FCC license by former CBS anchorman Walter Cronkite (a backer of ARRL, the American Radio Relay League), whose amateur radio call sign is KB2GSD.

Respondent is Executive Director of AARA, the American Amateur Radio Association, which directly competes with Complainant, Cronkite, and Lamonica backed ARRL, the American Radio Relay League, which is also an amateur radio "trade association." ARRL has a short wave "broadcast(1)" station with call sign W1AW which attempts to compete with Respondent's "broadcast(1)" station with call sign K1MAN. There is considerable professional jealousy between W1AW and K1MAN. Both

"broadcast(1)" stations are barred from commercial interests such as direct on air advertising, transmitting music, etc.

Respondent is also Manager of IARN, the International Amateur Radio Network, which directly competes with ARRL's amateur radio emergency communications organization known as ARES, the Amateur Radio Emergency Service.

Both AARA and IARN are divisions or the IARN Amateur Radio Peace Corps Foundation, Inc., a 501(c)(3) tax exempt Maine corporation.

The Complainant(s), de facto, being Crow, Cronkite, the FCC, and Lamonica would seem to prefer that AARA and K1MAN be eliminated from competing with ARRL and W1AW.

MOTIVATION OF COMPLAINANTS

Brian L. Crow

Mr. Crow represented to Respondent that he is a former NSA operative and has grants from the U.S. Department of Justice as well as the state of Pennsylvania, presumably to look into possible terrorist connections between Respondent and other factions world wide. IARN does, indeed, have operations world wide under the name and style of the Maine foundation and corporation IARN Amateur Radio Peace Corps Foundation, Inc. Respondent denies all of Mr. Crows allegations with regard to anything improper by Respondent or Respondent's many national and international operations, all humanitarian in nature. I am sure thet the NSA is capable of keeping "tabs" on IARN, AARA, K1MAN, and your Respondent.

Mr. Crow has essentially been "stalking" Respondent since 1992, presumably driven by his own jealousy and amusement and also to defraud the Justice Department and the state of Pennsylvania out of grant money coming from public taxes in the wake and huge frenzy following 911. Mr. Crow can be heard daily on amateur radio acting in a juvinile fashion (not illegal) but with no constructive sense of purpose (also not illegal). Mr. Crow sends harassing E-Mail to Respondent daily and appears to create anonymous anti Respondent web sites on a regular and continuing basis. All of Crow's allegations are false and/or greatly misleading, and Respondent intends to subpoena him before this Board.

Walter Cronkite, KB2GSB

Mr. Cronkite did a K1MAN station ID for Respondent years ago when his autobiography was about to come out, not then known to Respondent. Mr. Cronkite's ulterior motive was to promote his book by getting free publicity over K1MAN's international short wave programs. The backers of ARRL and W1AW were not too happy about Mr. Cronkite's thus implied support of IARN and amateur "broadcast"(1) station K1MAN. One anonymous radio amateur and ARRL supporter (presumably) even began publishing an anti Respondent newsletter (Manchester Newsletter) with the main and untrue theme being that Respondent was a convicted child molester and/or an "alleged child molester." Respondent met with the FBI regarding this vicious newsletter, published for many years and now defunct after Respondent brought suit against three suspected perpetrators, one being Chuck O'Neil, K1KW, who is part of the Lamonica petition. This newsletter (group) contacted Mr. Cronkite at CBS and threatened to also implicate him (Cronkite) in child molesting allegations. Cronkite then asked Respondent to cease using the ID, and Respondent agreed only if Mr. Cronkite would appear on Respondent's world wide short wave radio program and explain why he made this request. Cronkite declined and threatened to "go public" against Respondent which he subsequently did, his letter supplied to Crow, published all over the internet, and, in turn, supplied to the Maine Board of Licensure for Professional Engineers.

Respondent, not wanting to "cave in" to this criminal blackmail, tantamount to terrorism, continues to use the Cronkite ID, since pulling the ID would appear to be a (false) admission of guilt on several fronts. All of Cronkite's allegations are false, and Respondent intends to subpoena Mr. Cronkite before this Board.

Keith Lamonica, Esq., W7DXX

Mr. Lamonica is presumably being paid well by ARRL, Mr. Crow, or Mr. Cronkite, or all three. Perhaps Lamonica is just jealous and is working against Respondent "for free." All of Lamonica's allegations are false and/or misleading, and Respondent intends to subpoena him before this Board.

Mr. Lamonica has distorted facts and provided wholly false testimony in his petition, part of the instant "Complaint."

Regarding Rockwell Collins, Respondent legally acquired and used the Collins trade for many years after it was legally abandoned by Rockwell International after they bought out the Collins Radio Company and dropped using the Collins trade mark for the statutory two year abandonment period. Lamonica's version of this issue is false and misleading. The entire Lamonica petition is false and misleading. Respondent intends to subpoena Lamonica to appear before this Board.

FUNDAMENTAL ISSUES REGARDING THE FCC AND RESPONDENT

Respondent began transmitting world wide short wave programs in 1987. An FCC letter ruling in 1989 equated K1MAN programs with W1AW programs, both perfectly legal, of course..

In 1991 the International Amateur Radio Network was sending donated humanitarian supplies from Germany to Iran (in response to a major earthquake killing over 100,000 people and making over 100,000 people homeless) with the stipulation that IARN volunteers (from the Soviet Union and England) would supervise the distribution. The U.S. State Department objected to IARN's stipulations since they prefer to just send the relief supplies, no strings attached. IARN would never again get donated supplies from its valuable private sources if the supplies ever fell into non humanitarian hands (such as the military). The State Department has unlimited sources for their politically motivated relief.

Shortly thereafter, K1MAN received three Notices of Apparent Liability (totaling $3,600) from the FCC for doing exactly what was sanctioned by the FCC the previous year and is done daily by ARRL and W1AW. Respondent tried to take these conflicting FCC actions to court for resolution many times, without success, including a lawsuit in Federal District Court. See the attached Federal District Court ORDER.

Now the FCC has issued another "Notice of Apparent Liability," (the operative word here being "apparent!") this time for $21,000, as well as putting Respondent's amateur radio renewal application in "pending" status. Law permits K1MAN to continue operations until final disposition and all court appeals of the renewal application, of course.

The main issue is that scheduled W1AW and K1MAN short wave programs might cause incidental (not criminal) interference to ongoing communications either on the published frequency intentionally (to cause a conflict - a criminal act on the part of ARRL supporters) or unintentionally. The FCC has ruled that such K1MAN and W1AW programs are not less important than such existing communications. Conflicts must be resovled between the parties on a common sense basis per FCC rules. K1MAN has ALWAYS attempted to resolve any conflicts in good faith, and the other parties (Bermuda Net, Georgia SSB Net, ND8V and company, Polish Net, Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, etc.) basically say "Heck no; we will get the FCC to revoke your license instead."

The Commission (Riley Hollingsworth, K4ZDH) has actually encouraged radio amateurs to cause intrerference with K1MAN programs, such encouragement being a felony under Sections 333 and 501 of the 1934 Communications Act:

Section 333: "No person shall willfully or maliciously interfere with or cause interference to any radio communications or any station licensed or authorized by or under this Act operated by the United States Government."

Section 501: "Any person who willfully and knowingly does or causes or suffers to be done any act, matter or thing, in this Act prohibited or declared to be unlawful, or WHO WILLINGLY OR KNOWINGLY OMITS OR FAILS TO DO ANY ACT MATTER OR THING IN THIS ACT REQUIRED TO BE DONE, OR WILLINGLY OR KNOWINGLY CAUSES OR SUFFERS SUCH OMISSION OR FAILURE, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished for such offense, for which no penalty (other than a forfeiture) is provided by this Act, by a fine of not more than $10,000 or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or both."

In fact, Respondent first learned of this law in ARRL's 1989 FCC Rule Book. K1MAN began to publicize this criminal statute over the short wave programs, and ARRL then deleted the law from its 1990 and all subsequent FCC Rule Books, this act itself being a felony by ARRL.

FCC and Justice Department officials who have discouraged Respondent from reporting intentional criminal interference to K1MAN transmissions to the Judtice Department are also, themselves, in criminal violation from this federal statute.

Thus, the FCC Notice of Apparent Liability against Respondent is alleging a felony, which carries a two year jail sentence and/or $10,000 fine per occurrence. Similar actions against ARRL would be substantial, since W1AW has been doing the same thing as K1MAN for almost 100 years.

THE FCC

The FCC is probably "in bed" with ARRL (welcome to America!), which they can control, where they cannot "control" respondent since Respondent has no paid advertising or "controllable" commercial interests. The allegations in their recent $21,000 Notice of Apparent Liability are all false and/or misleading, with the same bogus allegations also being made in 1990 and never allowed by the FCC to go to court for resolution.

Respondent's attempts to bring the FCC false allegations before a court have not succeeded. Respondent even brought suit against the FCC in Federal District Court which was dismissed on sovereign immunity grounds. See attached ORDER.

All of the FCC's allegations are false or misleading, and Respondent intends to subpoena various officials of the Commission before this Board.

Respondent's amateur radio license renewal is currently "pending" in "legal limbo" while Respondent continues to legally operate station K1MAN until court action is taken but not expected by Respondent. The FCC is apparently watching this Board's actions with regard to the instant Crow complaint.

JURISDICTION

This Board is essentially being asked to litigate an FCC matter and it has no jurisdiction to do so. If the Board revoked Respondent's Professional Engineering License, the FCC could, in turn, revoke Respondent's amateur radio license, (on character qualification grounds) and vice versa, presumably. This whole charade is just a cute ARRL and FCC trick; again, welcome to America! Fortunately, we lave laws and administrative procedures here, unlike so many other less fortunate countries.

Wherefore,

Respondent moves this Board to Dismiss the Complaint.

or

In the alternative, Respondent moves the Board to table the Complaint until final disposition of Respondent's matters before the FCC.

or

In the alternative, Respondent requests a full hearing before this Board.

and

Respondent requests production of all documents and evidence in this matter that this Board may now have that has not already been supplied to the Respondent.

and

Respondent requests to inspect all documents, notes, minutes, etc. under the Freedom of Information Act regarding all previous matters, complaints, etc. made by Respondent to this Board in the past and specifically regarding fire hazzards and code violations at Ray Bouchard's two radio stations where Respondent was once employed. This employer is mentioned in the Lamonica petition to deny Respondent's FCC amateur radio license, said petition being a part of Mr. Crow's "Complaint."

Respectfully submitted,

(1) Broadcast is used in the generic sense here. Strict FCC legal definition of "broadcast" is "radio transmissions intended for reception by the general public," which is illegal under FCC rules and functionally impossible over amateur short wave radio since the public doesn't listen to amateur short wave radio because the subject matter of such transmissions must also be "Of direct interest to radio amateurs" under FCC rules.

Steve, lets look at some facts, first off I am in no way violating federal law, pehaps in that small weak mind of yours but here some facts, frist off I don't know really what "FCC" rule I broke, my Information bulletin is legal, I am not causing interference so there. As for my Ultralight i've have that thing now for over 10 years, I bought it off of another amateur radio operator and NOT has the FAA done anything. The only ONE complaining it seems is YOU and it not to anyone but on here as a excuse to try to discredit someone.

Only one person holds any one particular callsign, ergo it's far more individual than a name. There's only one N0IMD, however I know a half dozen "Brian's"

And MARS does not exist without Amateur Radio. Don't know why you brought that in, but there ya go. We don't call ya "Brain" for nothing!

Markie, you have clearly demonstrated that your "understanding" of other religions is faulty at best. I was being facetious when I suggested you be a role model...You being a role model would be like Teddy Kennedy giving driving lessons on bridges.

That was the LAST thing I wanted to hear. What a waste of good beer. At least it will keep people from drinking out of your bottle.

He has recieved lots of awards including one from the state of Main itself. Walter Cronkite promoted K1MAN to before the bad pple got to him. It is a good thing the FCC cant put him off the air until they go to court which they are scared to do. And there are pple who are going to sindicate K1MAN's 20 meter show. N9OGL and Sirius radio are both going to put it on the air.

K1MAN is a great man. Are you on Sirius radio? Has your state priased you in a legistlature resolution? Has Walter Cronkite ever announced on your station? I bet not because you are just average.

K1MAN is a great man and I back him all the way.

Hello, Jim

After seeing the words "good judgement" several time, I gave up. I suspect only about 20% of the operators around use good judgement all of the time and likely 10% never use good judgement .... :(

These CB types engage in the competitive activities

No _REAL_ Radio Hams are deceived by such people!

Hello Jim,

It's amazing how a basically good idea can be messed up so thoroughly....

The "CTT" proposal is even worse than the ARRL one. Basically it calls for simply eliminating all the mode/subband rules. Free For All....

They allegedly did a band-occupancy study - which consisted of scanning the HF bands over a 12 hour period of one day. As if that would be a representative sample.

Gotta love think tanks.....

The ARRL proposal has some good points, but they manage to ignore a lot of valid concerns like robot operation, and come up with a proposal that few will support as it stands.

I dunno what it means that FCC is only allowing 30 days for comments, but I hope it's an indication they think both of these are bad ideas...

If you "cut" a paragraph yet still presume to comment on the part you cut, you exercised censorship. I've got no issue with cutting something down to size when it goes more than 3-posts deep, Markie. I do it myself. But I don't "cut" that part out yet still comment on it.

I DO have KNOWLEDGE. Especially of the English language.

Seems your frame of effective expression is limited to illiterate jibberish and profanities. You DO have both of those "down pat".

However it in no way diminishes my comments. Your failure to express yourself more effectively in this forum is YOUR problem and is what leads to you being humiliated by just about everyone. (Notice I said "...just about.." Your Feeble Five bretheren notwithstanding...)

No...it's not a "crime"...It's just a pity that a "guy" like you claims it's anyones fault except his own that people have a hard time understanding him.

Evidence that your alleged "dysleia" is just that...Alleged.

> but you are quite wrong

Nope. Refer to any medical text on the metabolization of alcohol (ETOH) from the body.

The only thing that can precipitate the alcohol clearance is rapid IV therapy with multiple large-bore IV's, preferably with Normal Saline and/or what we call a "banana bag" IV (Multi-Vit, Magnesium Sulfate 2gm, Thiamine 100mg and folate 1 gm). You literally dilute the alcohol faster, but even that has a ceiling rate to it and is not a viable option in COPD'ers, CHF'ers, and certain other metabolic conditions.

No. I said it's OK to drink as long as you DON'T do those things
(Domestic abuse, DWI, etc)

What I HAVE said is that it's apparent in HERE when you've been drinking and posting because your already crappy posts become even worse.

Some punctuation! Congratulations!

It's more than "tired", Markie. One can watch your posting time trends and know when you're usually up and posting. A significant increase in errors in those windows mean you're either losing your temper (an illness you've already admitted to) or you're intoxicated.

Id' say, judging by that field notice that Mr. Baxter was definitely in the wrong (especially where the 75 minute infomercial about 'baxter and associates' was concerned).

I really hate to say this, but K1MAN appears (on the face of the facts) to have violated a number of the rules and is now subject to those rules.

let see how this plays out, shall we?

I doubt that 30 day window will give them a whole lot of time to make that "big" of a consideration, Jim.

My concern is that there are already too few folks out there who really understand what their bandwidth requirements are now.

I am also afraid that they will OVER-simplify the regs to something like "x" khz or narrower signals below "this" landmark, "y" khz or wider signals above". The list of potential nightmares is endless.

If it's copyrighted, then a complaint needs to be filed with the US copyright office, or at least get their advice as to how to proceed.

YOU are discrediting yourself, Toiddie.

YOU are the one who bragged about violating Part 97 of the FCC's

YOU are the one who bragged about operating an illegally modified

Not true, Copyright owner can get help from the federal government to enforce their copyrights, at the beginning of DVD and VHS you will notice a warning, and if you read that warning it states copyright violations are investigated by the FBI. It also doesn't matter how much economic injury accures if the work is copyrighted, and proven to be copyrighted, and you don't have that persons permission to use it you in violation of the law. It doesn't matter if the person is posting it for free or making money on it, if you don't have the owners permission it a violation of copyright law.

I've not made any promise to "not to" sue you, Markie.

I offered you options.

So far, you've pretty much thumbed your nose at them, although you
HAVE stopped abusing my father and daughter's memories.

We'll see.

There you go doing the very thing you say you DON'T do...

And Markie...

If you're going to try an insult people you don't know by calling them "dub" (I assume you meant "dumb"), perhaps YOU should not LOOK "dub" in the process...?!?!

I've not lied about and "question" Markie.

Only one of the options was discussed and the word "promise" was not a part of either scenario. But as usual, Markie, you've managed to get YOURSELF confused in the process.

Then why you whining here about it instead of go to FBI? But they only tell give you facts and not persecute, so you still haev to sue the guy yourselves.

Get stepping. Go to FBI.

Then I think what if guy in UK? who you contackt then? Probably the scottish yard or the queen but they would ginore you most liekly.

I have no doubt you were. I have no doubt that you spend a great amount of your effort trying to NOT get out of it. And judging by the last photos we saw of you, it probably takes a great amount of energy to get that much mass moving, energy I am sure you don't have.

Sure there is.

It was sarcasm.

A prudent person would not "assume" legal permission exists.

YOU are NOT a prudent person: witness your admitted deviant

I top post because modern readers allow top post. Your 'net ettiquette' is/was totally arbitrary to begin with. Top posting allows the reader to get to the issue without having to scroll through 100+ lines of text that has already been beaten to death.

And finally, if you are responding to top posting you have already violated your own precept by your response.

Now, there is a large consensus that a certain individual in the State of Maine is in difficulty with the FCC.

Is "the state of Main" a new state? Where is it?

What is a "pple?"

Can you spell "can't?"

What is "sindicate?" Is that an act against God as in sinning?

My state has never priased me for anything. However, it would help to know what "priased" means.

Our state does not have a "legistlature" so maybe that is why I have never been "priased."

So if this is the quality of individual that thinks a nut-job like K1MAN is a great man, then I know I am on the right side.

This is a perfect example of why we need to do away with the public school system of "education."

Have you been making lots of spelling errors, Steve?

Kind of funny when our self-appointed spelling cop can't spell for beans.

I realy don't think the man can

I think you go into house put guns to head of his kids and hed continue carring on about his aleged "right" to make his flase and slanderous accustion with out his victums have any right in return

the man is all ego all self comes out in his post

No you wouldn't. Mark is owed an apology. Even if you gave an insincere one, it would be an apology. Since it is owed, it would not be a lie.

When you make accusations of rape, it is despicable. When you change the attributes in a posting, it is called forgery.

Am I to understand that if you think Mark has made foul "accusations" that you are free to call him a rapist?

No. You probably top post because that's the default setting of your news reader, and you're too damned lazy (or ignorant) to change it.

> get to the issue without having to scroll through 100+ lines of text

Your "logic" is utter backpedaling b.s. - long ago refuted by serious Usenet readers. If a third and fourth party decides to add to a top posted thread, it rapidly deterioriates into an unfollowable mess.
This is especially true when you top post to an already bottom posted thread as you just did. You clearly are a rank newbie who needs instruction.

Don't even presume to lecture someone else, oh Clueless One.

Oh, wow! What logic skillz you possess, Batman. I'll bet you impress the hell out of the half-drunk rednecks at your local tavern. Better run right over there instead of hanging out here where you are SO not with it.

you did you typed "Markie, I ma not sure what it was."

typed me in there not me

can't even read you own posts

if you are going to play seppeling then you need to do better than that fixed your censorship

when you alter a post by changing the words you are engaging in censorship

that is paty of the basic meaning of the word

you don't the vulgarity that is your problem

despite you insistance oyherwise I am not required to protect you from your fears still avoid the question you evade more than John Kerry did runing for pres, and he did a slicker job of it was the statement rue or not

if iwas true then you gave me leave , if it was not true then you lied, and comitted fraud, the act of being sarcasic or not does not alter this

another lie

the truth is that I decided to zing you by taking you at your word.

yes as I have conceeded already I took advantage of your mistake.

but none the less you made the mistake, not me

when you goign shit or get off the pot?

simple question

you do twaist and trun all kinds of ways to avoid it but that will be mildly entertaining to watch personal I kinka hope you do sue me it would be entertaining to watch a lawyer try to argue before a judge that I am required to assume that someone that claims he never ever tells a lie was lying when he gave me leave to do the very things the plaintiff (that is you steve) is sueing him for that would be hoot to watch exposing you as a fraud and just maybe geting your aressted for prejury or fraud to the court, make the procedure almost worthwhile to me still I have no wish to entrap you.

if you file you will face the dismsiial of your case for your mutilple effort at fraud, and for you lies to the court and to us here on RRAP

as well as If you fille you will be coutersued with all the stuff my attorneys have said is too petty to take to court but would make good fodder to countersue

but on day 12 of this you that (in the past) before that you said that you would file within 10 days and time is running out, not on legaly being able to fille but on you being caught in yet another lie

So why do you start sex topic threads?

Why did you forge "Raped an old friend?"

Why did you lie and claim "Mark Morgan caught on tape...

the last was he response to a joke

Doesn't matter. What matters is what the FCC thinks they are, and how best to regulate.

The CTT proposal simply removes all landmarks. The ARRL proposal moves them and changes some definitions.

Remember that most of the rest of the world doesn't have subbands by mode.

This statemment is comical. Howard Stern, who if filthy rich, and his radio network, which was obscenely huge, could not win against the FCC.

K1MAN is a peon, compared to Stern. You are stupid, delusional, or both.

This is pretty much my comment on RM-11305 and RM-11306. Both parties,
The ARRL and the Communications Think Tank Group are basically from understanding, and I might be wrong, trying to change it from mode to bandwidth so to allow new technologies on the band, or again maybe I wrong, that was lease my understanding.
The problem I see with this is amateurs should be allowed to experiment with new technologies regardless of how the spectrum is made up. One of the main problems I had with experimenting hadn't been band planning or signal size, but from amateur operators who threatened to complain about my experimentations on the VHF/UHF bands because they believe that it was illegal.
Back in the early to mid 90's I was very active in digital modes including Packet, SSTV, and other digital modes, and at that time I had began experimenting with different types of applications which were mostly for packet radio. When I told an amateur friend that I was going to do some experiment, an another group of amateurs "threatened" me including complaining to the FCC to "making me have an accident".
In doing so I didn't do any experimenting. I do believe that reinforcing the experimental parts of the VHF/UHF should be pushed and endorsed. Even if amateurs wanted to experiment in digital modes on HF they should be allowed as long as they don't cause malicious interference. No changes should be made, except the attitude adjustment of the amateur radio community towards other amateurs who wish to experiment in new modes and applications.

Just for clarificxation -- if it's a question of WHO has the copyright, then it's a Federal administrative (Copyright Office) matter.

If it's a question of damages for copyright violation, it's a state civil matter. I can just hear a close freind, who is a state court judge, making his usual comment about "it's a shame that stupidity is not a criminal offense in this state".

In addition, a specific Federal statute may exercise criminal jurisdiction in certain instances, such as for CD, VCR, and DVD piracy. These statutes usually specify a minimum amount for the value of the material so pirated, the number of copies made, or both.

PS - there are several cases that relieve ISPs from responsibility for someone copying and reposting/publishing copyrighted stuff that is on their public servers (BBS, Web Pages, etc) when the material did not originate with the ISP. The only remedy that the injured party can demand of the ISP is to refuse further access by the violator, but that requires that a judicial finding be made that the alleged violator did in fact do an unlawful act.

> same manner you do

I fully realize that you don't see things the same as most people do.
What you'd like me to believe is that the things you stand for are okay, your version of the politically correct view that nothing is right or wrong--that there are only shades of gray. Sorry, I'm not buying in.

> but you are doing so badly

I'm sure that it seems that way to you. You have comprehension problems. When I make a point, the first thing you're apt to type is "your point?" or, more typically, "yuor point". It is pretty silly to have me explain my posts when what I've stated is readily apparent to all but you.

> what has happend is a recent steady counter attack at the long

You're attacking Len Anderson?

> but all of this is nothing more than a diversion

Okay. You're creating a diversion. What's your real goal?

> if you don't want to read what is in my posts don't read them

It isn't always a matter of not reading them, Colonel. Some of 'em simply can't be read. Aside from that, you've introduced quite a number of names which under which you've posted. How am I to know when posts are yours?

> if you can't stand the notion that other people use there free speech

So, you are telling me that when Steve exercises his right to free speech here, then you should be turning off your PC if you don't like it?

> that isn't your only optition , you could for example grow up, and > other choices certainly exist

It is ludicrous for someone who has posted the things and numbers of posts you've created over the past several weeks to advise anyone to "grow up". You've exhibited the behavior of a fourteen-year-old.

Not at all. You simply have a comprehension problem as well as a a

a few thoughts read or not as you like

One is is not my job to "protect" you from whatyou find ofensive, it is just isn't my job

Two, may be you should out more but the language you object too is mild compared to TV these days The Govenor of CA has said the word
"Bullshit" "fuck you asshole" you realy need to look around at the world

you don't have to like but you do need to deal with reality

three, I am not obliged to behave in a manner you choose , that is simply not the case

A VERY FEW thoughts, as it turns out.

> One is is not my job to "protect" you from whatyou find ofensive, it
> is just isn't my job

And in any case, there's nothing YOU could do to "protect" me that my years in the Armed Forces and a TN CCP doesn't do for me.

> Two, may be you should out more but the language you object too is > mild compared to TV these days The Govenor of CA has said the word
> "Bull###" "#### you ###hole" you realy need to look around at the

I think that this proves that when a "celebrity" does something, the weak minded and the easily swayed think it's "OK" to do too.

Pardon me if I am not ready to undermine a more mature and responsible society because an ex-bodybuilder used some profanity in a movie, Mark.

> you don't have to like but you do need to deal with reality

I for one AM "dealing"...By trying to overcome such assinine role model assumptions.

> three, I am not obliged to behave in a manner you choose , that is > simply not the case

No one said you're "obliged" to act in any manner...Just that if you're going to "hang" with us, we don't care to be subjected to such trashmouth language.

I think it speaks volumes when you seem unable to "rein in" your trash mouth even when it takes extra effort to use it on a keyboard.

> no w grow up and chew on those thoughtd (or not)

The one who needs to do the "growing up" is the one who thinks that being trash-mouthed and weak minded is "OK" because a celebrity used some profanity in a movie.

I for one like Amateur Radio BECAUSE it's a bit more cerebral passtime and the typical adherant tends to be a little bit smarter and more mature than your average "big time wrestling" fan.

Add an "n" to that "dam" if your intent is to be offensive, Markie.

No, it's not. "Offensive" to you, perhaps, but not "foul".

Again, to you perhaps. But I am sure it's an odor that you're quit comfortable around considering some of your professed preferences.

Still not paying attention.

Still making up more stuff as you go.

Nice try, though!

Everything's as straight as it can be. Except you, of course.

Why do I not find the idea of Markie wearing three pasties odd?

Dave Heil's not said one deceitful word.

YOU, on the otherhand, have BRAGGED on being mistruthful.

So where do you think trust and believeability are going to rest in the eyes of everyone else in the NG? With Dave, or with you?

Sure it is.

Dave's posted MAYBE 15-20 times in the "last few weeks".

YOU, on the otherhand, have bombed the NG with almost a thousand profanity filled diatribes.

> if you were staingthat I have not used my control in a manner you

You're NEVER in control, Markie. > I have the right to make as many posts as I like so do you and steve

But I've never bombed this NG like you do, Markie. And NEVER with profanity laden subject lines and content.

You're a real wiener. (No, I didn't spell that wrong.

Markie dodging his lack of awareness as to what "disingenuous" means.

Nope. You've said exactly that in the past.

No, he (as would I) would like to see self-righteous punks like you who scream about "MY RIGHTS! MY RIGHTS!" actually demonstrate some tolerance for everyone else's rights.

> what I would liek is for you to respect the constitttution of the USA

What I would like is to have creeps like you who never did anything for the Constitution of the United States quit telling everyone else what it's all about.

> foruately for me I don't realy expcet you to do so

"foruately" "realy" "expcet"

How about YOU showing some "respect" for the English language?

Unfortunately I really don't expect you to do so.

What's a contitution?

Sure he has.

I thought the same thing.

Lennie's tried to tear into each and every person who's entered this forum who has expressed even the mildest of opinions that even remotely appear to contradict any of his dictates.

Double dodge. Pretty good move for a fat boy like you, Markie.

All of them appear to be someone else.

None of them appear to be impressed by Mark Morgan.

Someone needs to leave here, Markie.

It's not Dave Heil.

> not my job to help you with that

There's not a job in the world that I'd pay you to do for ME, Markie. There's not a thing I can think of that I could trust you to do completely, accurately and to specification...And that includes janitorial, housekeeping, and waste removal.

You obvioulsy can't write well, nor do you have adequate comprehension skills, even for the most simplistic of applications. If one cannot expect you to read or write competently in English, how do YOU expect them to hire you?

Because you've acted like a brat...Determined to pee in the whole pool if you can't have it to yourself.

What is Ham Radio?

(Preface)
It is becoming increasingly difficult to fly the flag for decency and for civilised behaviour in Radio Hammery. Even the Usenet newsgroups dedicated to the cause have degenerated into a hotbed of abusive onslaughts by those who ought to know better.
However, there still exists the fundamental basis on which Ham Radio is based, and that will never die. This FAQ ("What Is Ham Radio?") will be regularly published and will not be shouted or bullied down. It is important that those of a technical bent, who are the natural seed-corn of Radio Hammery
and who gravitate towards us to be the real novitiate, can still find us, (and know that we are still here), their fellows.

-----ooooo-----

Please remember that this FAQ is a _POSITIVE EXHORTATION_
to you to exert yourselves to join our fraternity! (If you find otherwise, then perhaps you are already classing yourself in the mediocre groups of those who are criticised in the FAQ and from whom we _MUST_ dissociate? If so - it's never too late for a re-taxonomisation on your part - there's nothing elitist about us, and we welcome all those who are prepared to put themselves
out in order to join our ranks!)

-----ooooo-----
(Article)
So,.....What is Ham Radio?

Ham Radio is a technical pursuit for those who are interested in the science of radio wave
propagation and who are also interested in the way that their radios function. It has a long-standing tradition of providing a source of engineers who
are born naturals.

Ham Radio awakens in its aficionados a whole-life
fascination with all things technical and gives
an all-abiding curiosity to improve one's scientific knowledge. It's a great swimming pool, please dive in!

This excitement causes a wish to share the experience
with ones fellow man, and shows itself in the gentlemanly traditions of Ham Radio.

Radio Hams are in a unique privileged position in that they can construct and operate their own equipment! No-one else has this privilege. Users, such as broadcasters,
the po lice and armed farces, CBers and mobile phone users have to purchase ready-made gear. Manufacturers
are not licensed to operate their gear. Radio Hams
are qualified to design, build and then operate their own pieces of equipment. They do this
with gusto, and also repair and modify their own equipment. This is a privilege well worth the effort
to gain, and one to be jealously guarded.

The excitement that drives a Radio Ham starts with relatively simple technologies at first, perhaps making
his own Wimshurst machine and primary cells. Small pieces
of test equipment follow, possibly multimeters and signal
generators. Then comes receivers and transmitters. It is with the latter that communication with like-minded technically motivated people takes off. The scope for technical development grows with the years
and now encompasses DSP and DDS. There is also a great deal of excitement in the areas of computer programming to
be learnt and applied.

The technical excitement motivates Radio Hams to compete
with each other to determine who has designed and manufactured
the best-quality station. This competitiveness is found in DXing, competitions and fox-hunts.

-----OOOOO----

However, beware! A Ham Radio licence is such a desirable thing to have that there are large numbers of people who wish to be thought of
as Radio Hams when, in fact, they are nothing of the kind! Usually such people are a variation of the CB Radio hobbyist; they buy their radios off the shelf and send them back to be repaired; they are not interested in technical discussion
and sneer at those who are; they have no idea how
their radios work inside and have no wish to find out;
they are free with rather silly personal insults;
they have not satisfied any technical qualification
and their licences prevent the use of
self-designed-and-built equipment.

These CB types engage in the competitive activities
with their Cheque-Book-purchased off-the-shelf radios
in a forlorn effort to prove that they are Radio Hams.

No _REAL_ Radio Hams are deceived by such people!

-----ooooo-----

One such CB type is the so-called "Not-Ham". Otherwise known as the CBer-Masquerading-As-A-Radio-Ham, this type
had their background in the hobby that is CB Radio and not in the technical pursuits that lead up to a coveted Ham licence.
Easily recognised by their boasts of the criminal activity of 11 metre SSB operation, one wonders why they don't go back to the CB Bands if such bands are dearer in their hearts than are the Ham Bands? No _REAL Radio Hams associate with those who made an illegal installation of transmitting equipment before being
in possession of an appropriate licence.

-----ooooo-----

One infallible way to disambiguate the CB Radio Hobbyist
from the _REAL_ Radio Ham is to solicit their view of the difference between CB Radio and Ham Radio. A Radio Ham will perceive Ham Radio to be a technical pursuit and will perceive CB Radio to be a social communications facility
no different in essence to a land-line telephone or a GSM mobile in the hands of a 6-year-old. Thus a Radio Ham could also hold a CB licence safe in the knowledge that such a licence says no more about him than having a land-line telephone, whilst continuing to regard Ham Radio as a separate technical pursuit.

A CB Radio hobbyist, on the other hand, sees no difference between a Ham Radio licence and a CB Radio licence. To him, they are sisters-under-the-skin. Wrongly, the CB Radio Hobbyist then
tries to classify himself as the equal of the Radio Ham when, in fact, he is nothing of the kind. A sure sign of a CB Radio hobbyist is if he holds, or has ever held, a licence
issued under the gangrenous degeneration that is the M3/CB Fools' Licence scheme.

-----ooooo-----

One group of people who claim to be of the standard of Radio Hams but who are in reality nothing more than an apology for the failure of a CBer are those class B
licensees who falsely proclaimed that they were against
the use of a Morse Test to control access to the HF
bands, until, that is, a test was introduced at their intellectual level, the intellectual level of 6-year-olds.

6 year-olds simply lack the mathematical tool kit to enable them to handle even the simplest algebraic manipulation
for Ohm's Law and thus, the disgraceful Class Ber's in the aforementioned category are not Radio Hams by any stretch
of the imagination!

Remember - A sure sign of a CB Radio hobbyist is if he holds,
or has ever held, a licence issued under the gangrenous
degeneration that is the M3/CB Fools' Licence scheme!

Steamed about Rice, Russian pol unleashes rant Russian pol Vladimir Zhirinovsky says what Condi needs is a man.

Condoleezza Rice might want to see if there's room in one of those "black site" terror-suspect prisons for Russian politician Vladimir Zhirinovsky. The wacko leader of Russia's Liberal and Democratic Party has surpassed his earlier screeds with a misogynist attack on our secretary of state.

Speaking with Pravda this week, Zhirinovsky chastised Rice for calling on Russia to "act responsibly" in supplying natural gas to Ukraine. The fascistic pol attributed that "coarse anti-Russian statement" to Rice being "a single woman who has no children." "If she has no man by her side at her age, he will never appear," Zhirinovsky ranted on. "Condoleezza Rice needs a company of soldiers. She needs to be taken to barracks where she would be satisfied.

"Condoleezza Rice is a very cruel, offended woman who lacks men's attention," he added. "Such women are very rough. . They can be happy only when they are talked and written about everywhere:
'Oh, Condoleezza, what a remarkable woman,
what a charming Afro-American lady! How well she can play the piano and speak Russian!'

"Complex-prone women are especially dangerous.
They are like malicious mothers-in-law, women
that evoke hatred and irritation with everyone.
Everybody tries to part with such women as soon as possible. A mother-in-law is better than a single and childless political persona, though."

A State Department spokesman told us
Rice would not "dignify the article with a response."

Zhirinovsky has made no secret of his insanity in the past. Besides praising Hitler and encouraging the use of nuclear weapons, he has advocated Russia's invasion and "reacquisition" of Alaska.
To eradicate bird flu, he's suggested arming
every Russian and ordering them to shoot everything with feathers

Vladimir Zhirinovsky for President 2008 !!

Dear Members Of This Thread In Rec.Radio.Amateur.Policy,

When an inter-group arguments transcend all technological boundaries and deposits themselves in my e-mail box, being the Kitty Kat I am, curiousity motivates further exploration.

Hell if I can't figure out what you guys are byting at each other for, however based upon the group name may I assume the normal rhythm of conversation typically is grounded in policy, rules and guidelines pertaining to amateur radio broadcasting? I didn't see very much substance pertaining to such a topic, but then again I recently resigned from being a professional mental health patient so there might be lingering threads still left behind.

Please keep your volume down when practicing your philosophies surrounding freedom of speech to each other. Just because there is a computer screen in front of you does not mean your voice will not be heard...and as I mentioned above, someone deposited your group into my mailbox for further review.

United the Terica Way Now and For Always,

Hitler was a great man too. Germany was starving after ww1 and he made it prosper. Of course at the hands of millions of people.
JFK was a great man. Of course he almost started ww3 and was hooked on meth.

Sort of like the lie that Mark Morgan of Marquette, MI was "threatened." Haven't heard a goddamn word from anybody about those
"threats", Marky. Looks like you lied again.

No, I'll be letting your mommy bob her head up and down in my lap like she did last night, Markie. You fill in the blanks what she was really doing. You've done the same thing yourself just not in my lap, but in another man's lap.

I can't see much insanity here - I would've thought he was stating the obvious -- although a hand grenade up the cunt followed by being booted off

Wearing pasties? What a completely strange idea.

Steve, why does your mind go straight to the gutter at every opportunity?

A pasty is a famous UP food. Maybe when you have your day in court you'll get to enjoy a pasty before you're laughed out of the UP.

Looks like a typical CB rig with the typical (illegal) amplifier. If Mark would upgrade he could then buy a REAL radio and legally own an amplifier.

indeed Steve does seem to beleieve only he has a any right to privacy

but ofcourse steve is iclearly in sane

he thinks rape is funny that Kiddy porn isn't realy child abuse somehow that he victum none the less have a LEGAL dut to protect him from HIS misstakes

He thinks only he is allowed to lie(mark morgan caught ontape..) that or that he the preveledge of commiting a felony in his own right (aiding me by keep this "tape" you claim to have would be a felony in its own right steve but indeed just what allows you to come to the conclusion that Todd is Gay. I know he is not gay, He might be straight or a closet Bisexaul(Todd my knowledge of your private life only goes so far) but he is not gay. and yet steve claims to know other wsie about the only way that steve could know scuh a thing is to have been Todd lover personaly (given that I know something of Todd I am sure even if Todd were bi hed have better taste than Steve, homesexaul generaly don't self hating sexaul partners, whcih steve would sure be

And Roger Wiseman is flattered!

Next round?

Roger will be giving Todd a call and asking Todd to go out for drinks at the Now there's a grand claim. The only thing you did was to clip my statement that "as America goes, so goes Canada." We lost it for them.

Their government merely realigned their spectrum to match ours.

I would recognize his profile anywhere. Obviously, he was predestined to receive the NIM Busters' "Cocksucker of the Year" award. The mere existence of that award shows just how smart those NIM Busters

There's an almost unlimited amount of bandwidth here, Brain.

If you need THAT much room, then perhaps you need to pare down your rhetoric a bit.

And my "arguments" are pretty well narrowed down to you and your Feeble Five bretheren. I can communicate effectively, if not outright

So why did you originally spell it "pasties", the common usage of that word refering to a device that is meant to partially obscure the burlesque dancers?

I hope you're not submitting these specific words to the FCC as a"comment", Toiddie...Get a 3rd grader to proof read it for ya first, OK...?!?!

Your "understanding" of effective expression and English composition are weak, to say the least. If you want to get your point accross, sharpen your mind before you sharpen the pencil.

> The problem I see with this is amateurs should be allowed to

You consider it to be a problem to let Amateurs experiment with new technologies?

I hope not, but that's EXACTLY what you said.

> band planning or signal size, but from amateur operators who threatened

Trying to remotely control and telemeter that liquid oxygen cooled storage capacitor idea, Toiddie...?!?!

All kidding aside (yeah...right!)...Here's a simple plan for you that will leave the FCC reeling in respect for your "experimenting" and have them squelching your detractors, Toiddie:

(1) In a simple college ruled notebook, write down what it is you perceive as the problem. (poor data rates for example)

(2) Outline your intended plan to overcome the problem.

(3) Keep and maintain an ACCURATE logbook, if for no other operations for these. Make sure you document time, modes, power, and if you're playing with the encoding sequence, make sure that it's documented so the FCC can use it to decode any transmissions they intercept.

(4) Just DO IT and worry about it later.

And just remember...There's a lot of trailer park war heros out there right now who are kicking themselves for laughing at that Gates "nerd"...

> In doing so I didn't do any experimenting.

I see three probable responses here:

(1) Since they probably know you as one of the "locals", the "( )other group of amateurs" actually knew what your "experiments" were,
and that law enforcement involvement was probably prudent, for observation and public safety, if nothing else.

(2) This is a manifestation of a severe paranoia issue you haven't had addressed by your therapist yet. Tell her...tell her E V E R Y T H I N G.......

(3) Your "friend" wasn't much of a friend since he went straight to the other group and told them what you were up to and did so in such a way as to cause them to be alarmed.

Moral of the story: If you're going to do something someone else may have an opportunity to object to before you can do it, keep your mouth shut and do it quietly.

I bet that "someone needs an attitude adjustment" attitude of YOURS is what causes your fellow locals to "take up arms" against you, Toiddie.

Come to think of it, it works here, too!

Dear Chaps in the UK:

The hate and discontent just spewed upon you per the nickname of "an_old_friend" is none other than Mark C. Morgan, KB9RQZ.

Mark is quick to call others "bigot", among other things, however as it turns out he is the most aggrevious example of what a bigot really is. In this case, suggesting that those of you posting from the UK about license issues (a policy matter if ever I heard one) was somehow inapproprate on RRAP.

There is no prohibition in the RRAP "charter" about such messages being ONLY related to FCC (ie: "United States") jurisdiciton. I for one am interested in seeing how y'all perceive such issues and handle them.

Furthermore, he certainly does NOT hold any "moderator" status that would permit him to direct ANY discussion in this forum.

As for Mark...well...Mark is an enigma even here in the States. "Mark" is what happens when you spend more on one B-2 than you do on your entire nationwide in-patient mental healthcare system...A system that he'd be in if it were better funded.

Mark's tales started with his insistance that he was a drafted colonel in the US Army "chemical corps" (we was 8 years old when the draft ended in the States). He's recently been responsible for spamming RRAP with over 1000 messages and using the names of deceased family members of this respondant's family in order to "get a point across".

I am sure you know what "point" got across! ;)

So, please accept one Yank's apologies for the discourtesy and incivility exercised against you by one of my (less well cultured) countrymen.

Under Mark's rules, you can't bring up his sexuality or perversity, but he feels a compulsion to tell us what he does with beer. Under the Mark Morgan rules, being bisexual isn't being gay; black is white and white is black; up is down and down is up. Every view, no matter how stupid, is given equal weight unless it is your view, my view or a view commonly held by society in which we live.

Mark cries "censhorship" even when his message has been posted without interference. He'd like to control what is cut, snipped or omitted in subsequent posts too. At the same time, if you post something which he finds offensive, he begins "cuting" or "flsuhing". Under the Mark Morgan rules, he is always a victim, always deserving of special treatment. Why, I'm almost beginning to feel sorry for him.

pasty plus one pasty," but then the spelling cop of RRAP would have showed up. He showed up anyway wearing his perverse hat.

Hi! You'll think you've found a strip joint on every street in the UP.

I wonder what you're going to think when you pass by the "The Gay Bar"

Try not to act too disappointed.

This isn't a courts martial. Mark >does< get to speak and present your incessant postings about people being gay, having bunkmates, or "Raped an old friend."

By the way, how could you post something that despicable to an amateur radio discussion group?

Then there were your threats of making phone calls, and guess what? Mark says phone call were made saying they were YOU. Gosh!

If you really didn't make the phone calls, you sure set yourself up to get blamed.

You sure say and do stupid things on rrap.

I think that's what prompted his letter to your nurses board.

An apology sure would have been a better solution.

Apparently he doesn't value VHF.

He cuts my post, and in agreeing with me, he demands I answer questions making it >appear< as if we have an argument. Hi!

Strange little clown tricks.

The facts:

1. Use it or lose it.

2. We lost it a long time ago.

3. Canada catches up and mimics our 220 allocations >exactly<.

Since 220 is not a worldwide allocation, Canada had no reason to exactly mimic our plan.

That Jim sure is a smart feller.

Your remarks, "Raped and old friend" have yet to elicit a explanation from you.

Asking why you could post anything that despicable brings only silence
from you.

Indeed. Mark showed you that.

Mark has asked why you need to comment on a person's sexual orientation in an amateur radio newsgroup. He has also asked you to eliminate your comments on people's sexual orientation in an amateur radio newsgroup.

Hmmm? Bill Sohl left. Few others are active. Best of luck communicating effectively with "everyone else."

Perhaps they think you're not worth the trouble. Others are just tired of your nonsense.
